College Years

— The years of expectation and opportunity. Those "carefree" years that were filled with frustration as well as laughter. The years of trials that led to growth.

The years of Challenge.

EKU

HOME OF THE COLONELS

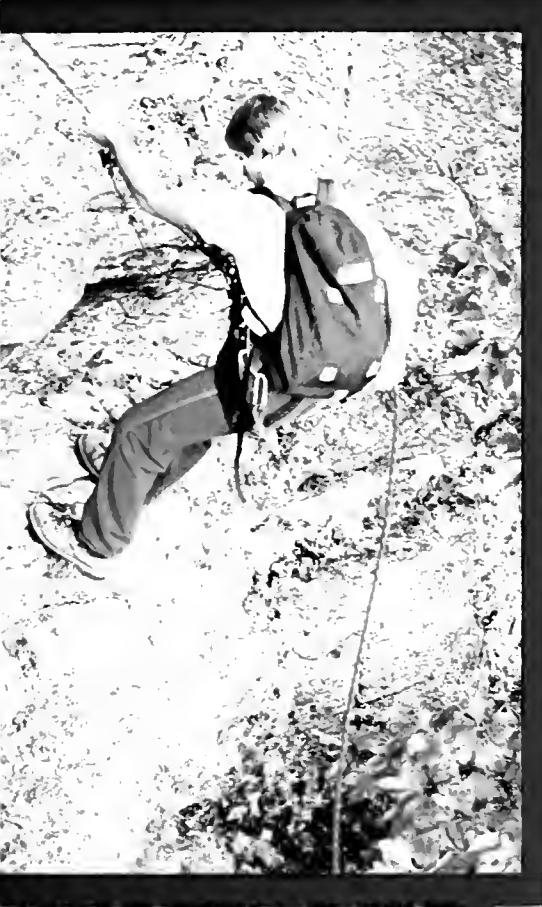

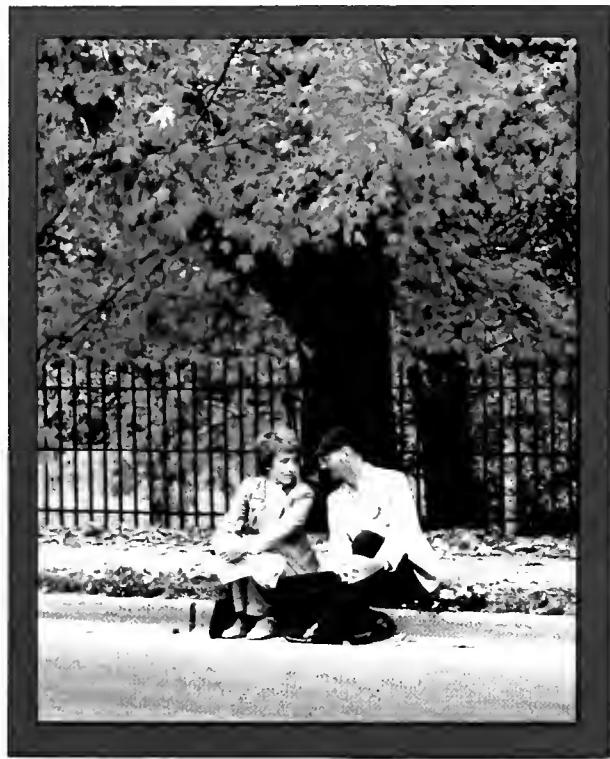

In order to meet the challenges, the traditions of the University provided the necessary growth and stability.

The experience of a time-honored institution and the benefit of a modern campus offered students the tools of education to use as they saw fit.

During the fall it was God that took on the challenge.
He turned the summer greens into reds, golds and oranges. The transformation lured students away from classrooms to witness the splendor of His work.

As the college years progressed, education came to mean people meeting people, working with people, getting to know people.

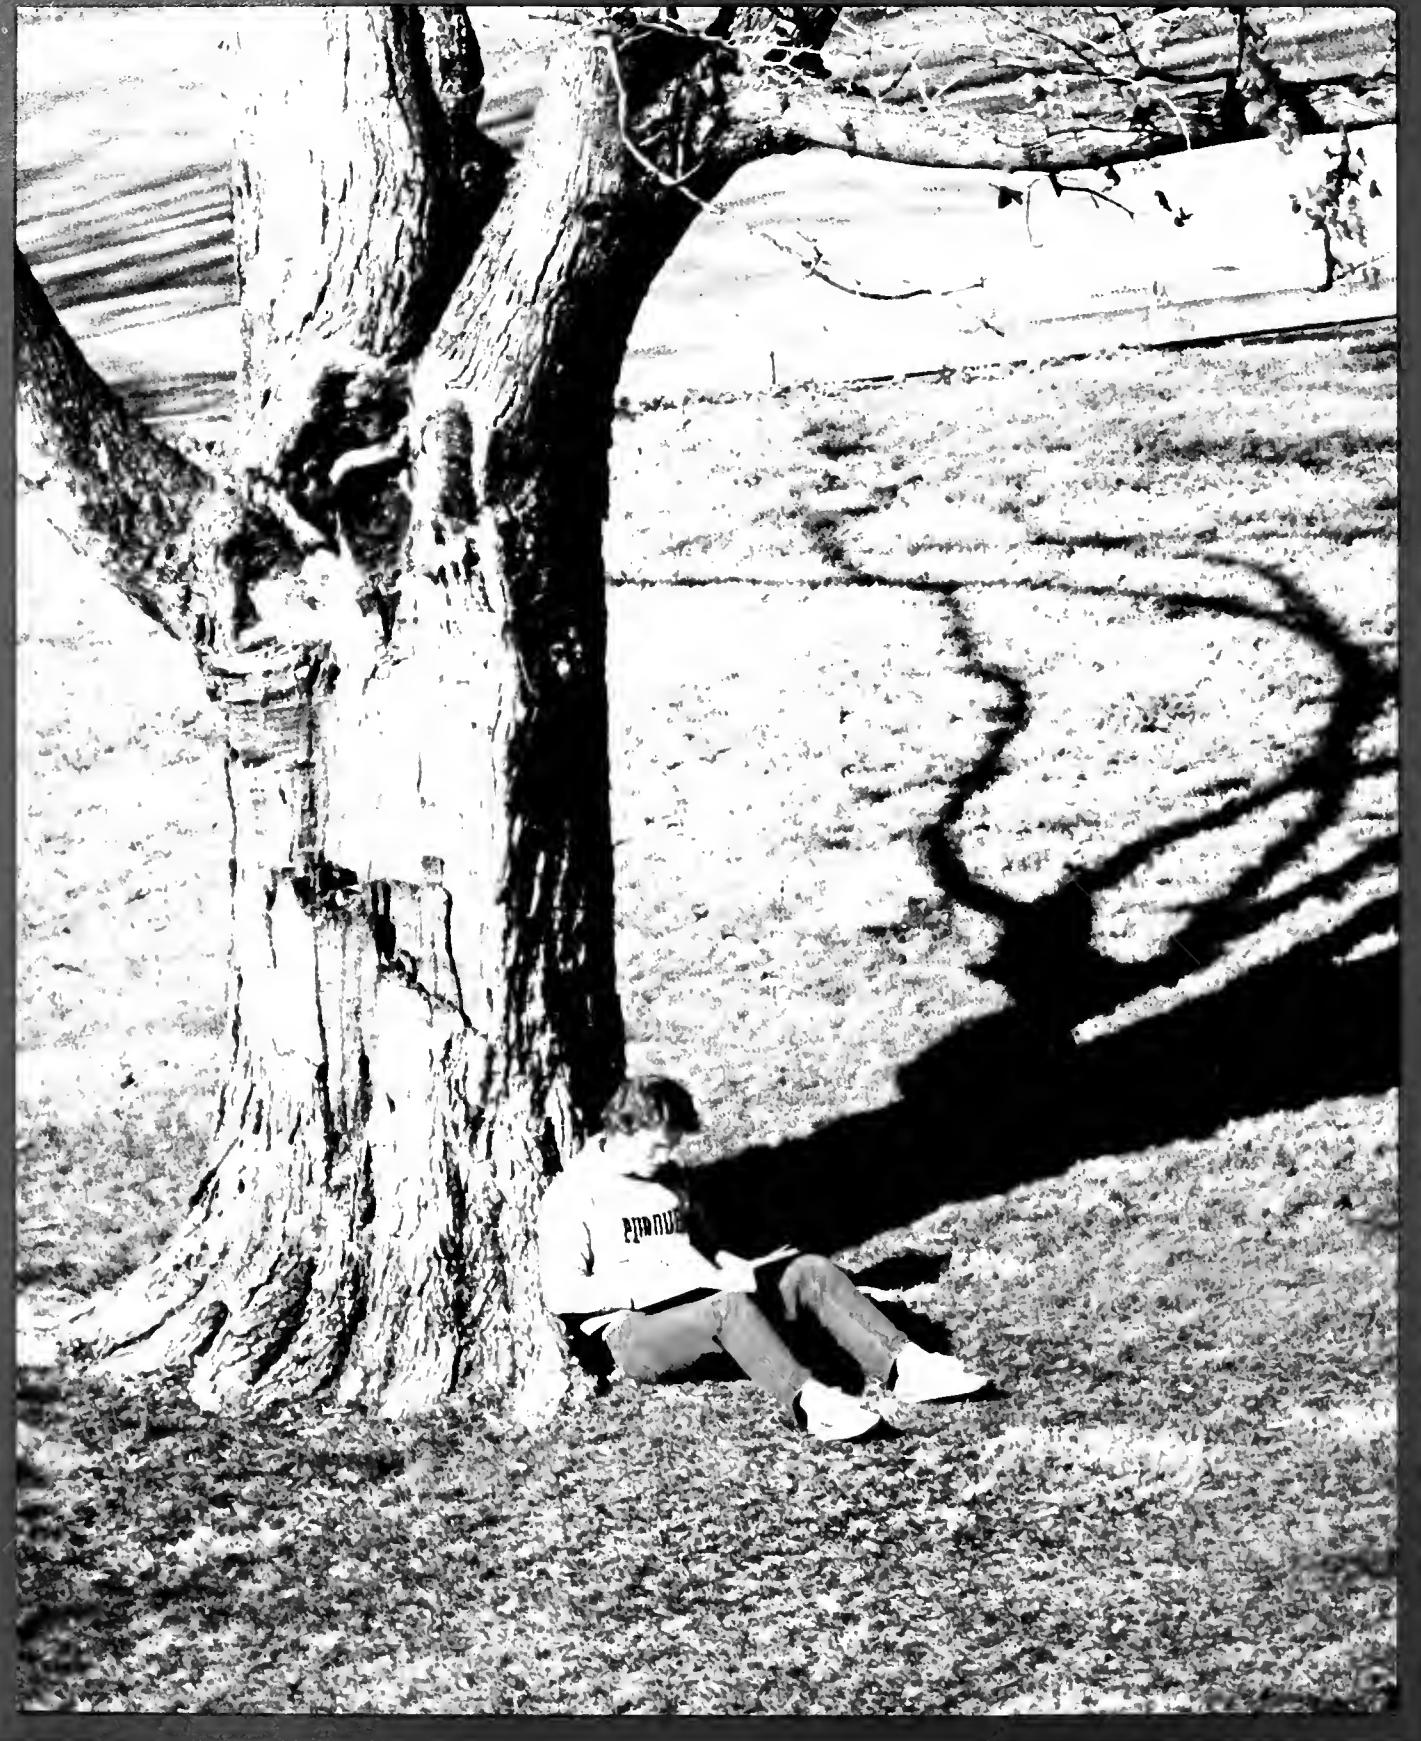

From these relationships, friendships were formed that would survive future years of separation.

Hours of studying for exams, hours of practicing for theater productions and hours of late night conversations provided bonds of friendship.

Later in life, reunions would bring the friends together again.

Time was spent alone trying to decide what life was/is all about. Time was spent with friends creating memories that would someday be "the best years of our lives."

College was also a time of growth that came by giving of ourselves so that "WE," not "I," could succeed.

As the time passed the challenges seemed less invincible and future less uncertain.

From these challenging times came the satisfaction of an achievement earned through perseverance and determination.

From this achievement came the confidence to face the challenges of the future.

What we obtain too cheaply we esteem too lightly; it is dearness only which gives everything value.

Student Life Challenging Times

University President J.C. Powell contemplates cut backs in state financing facing higher education.

President J.C. Powell explains steps the University has taken to handle cut backs that have occurred since 1980.

With President Ronald Reagan's "mandate" from the people to trim federal spending and Gov. John Y. Brown's "Kentucky and Company Government," higher education has become the main target of budget cuts. From the growth and expansion of the 60's and 70's, it has become a matter of Economy vs The University for the 80's.

Like all colleges and universities in the state, Eastern has had to trim its budget several times since 1980. In an effort to cope with budget cuts the University made several adjustments. Positions that became vacant during the year were filled only if they were essential. An across-the-board reduction of 10 percent in operating expenses was also put into effect.

In an effort to cope with budget cuts and maintain its quality education the University's Board of Regents requested general fund appropriation increases of $18.3 million for the 1982-84 biennium budget.

University President J.C. Powell said in an interview, ". . . if we set as our only goal the provision of unavoidable cost items and cost of living increases, we would have to make enough reductions in our operating expenses to achieve them.

"Equally important, however, is that since about 1978 or 1979, we haven't increased our allocation for operating expenses, educational supplies, office supplies, or travel — the sort of things that are necessary to keep up. When you consider that inflation has been somewhere near double-digit during that period of time, we in effect have lost 30 to 40 percent in effective purchasing power.

"As for Eastern, we are trying to find ways to improve our academic programs."

"The thrust of the 80's in higher education will be toward quality, not quantity."

Economy vs. Collegiate Sports

Women's gymnastics is also one of the four collegiate sports to be dropped by the University after this year.

There was a plaque hanging in Dr. Gerald Calkin's office in Alumni Coliseum that was inscribed with, "If you are being run out of town, get in front of the crowd and make it look like a parade."

Dr. Calkin, the men's gymnastics coach, wasn't being run out of town, but the gymnastics team was dropped as a college sport at the end of the year, and the team was going out in style.

The team worked hard not to tail-off during the last season, and the work paid off. By March, they were ranked 41st nationally — the highest ranking the team had received in its 13 years of competition at the University.

At the last home meet, 800 fans and alumni watched the team in a match against the University of Miami and the University of Georgia.

The last home meet is usually reserved for introducing the senior team members to the audience. This year, however, everyone was introduced. In a way, they were all seniors.

Calkin first learned of the cut last spring when a request for money to be used in recruiting was denied.

Despite the announcement that the sport would be dropped, the squad for 1982 has nine members, with only one senior.

"The fact that the sport was being dropped made it a strange year. In a sense, everyone was a senior," Calkin said.

The team also has had a record of academic excellence. For the last several years, the squad has maintained the highest GPA of any team on campus.

The program also had an impact on the high school gymnastics program in Kentucky. Calkin said there is a high percentage of University graduates that coach high school gymnastics, and while gymnastics is declining in most high school programs across the nation, it is growing in Kentucky.

Calkin summed up the season with this statement, "It was the best season we ever had. I'm pleased because it's a good way to finish out a quality program and very unhappy to see the program discontinued. I feel that the discontinuation of the program is going to be detrimental to University and high school gymnastics instruction."

"While a few dollars were saved out of the athletic budget, it is not without cost."

(Other sports being cut were women's gymnastics, women's indoor track and men's cross country.)

Economy vs The Student

At a protest rally in 1968 students would have chanted against the administration, but in 1981, the chant was with the administration.

On October 22, 2,000 students gathered around the Meditation Chapel, and along with University President J.C. Powell and Student Association President Carl Kremer, voiced their dissatisfaction that "higher education is secondary" in Frankfort.

Although William McCann, chairman of the Kentucky Council on Higher Education, was considered the key speaker, University President-Emeritus Dr. Robert R. Martin was the catalyst the students needed to voice their support.

Martin, now a state senator and a member of the Appropriation and Revenue Committee, made references to Gov. John Y. Brown's classification of the University of Kentucky as the "flagship university" of the state.

"I pity a flagship without a fleet," chided Martin.

School Year 1982-83

Economy vs. Financial Aid

What is the Financial Aid Form?

The Financial Aid Form (FAF) is used by colleges and programs to determine if you want to apply for financial aid for the coming year.

- financial aid programs after high school or college
- state scholarship programs
- federal student aid programs including the Pell (Basic) Grant Program

The information you give is confidential.

After you fill out the FAF, send it to the College Scholarship Service. They will analyze it and send the information to the colleges and programs you list on your FAF. Each college or program will tell you whether you will get financial aid and how much.

How do I apply for financial aid from colleges and programs other than my state scholarship and grant programs?

With the colleges you want to attend to see if they need a copy of the FAF. If so, list them in question 41. It costs $6.50 for the first college and $4.50 for each other college listed in question 41.

If you want to apply to your state scholarship or grant program, check the special box in question 42 and add $2.50 to the fee.

Don't send cash. Make your check or money order out to the College Scholarship Service. Some colleges and programs may ask you to fill out other forms as well.

How do I apply for federal student financial aid programs?

You apply for federal student financial aid programs by checking "Yes" in question 43. You'll find more information about federal student financial aid programs in this booklet.

When should I fill out the FAF?

Fill out and mail the FAF after January 1, 1982, but at least one month before the earliest deadline of the colleges and programs that you list in question 41. Don't file this FAF after March 15, 1983.

What is my CSS "Estimated Contribution"?

The CSS estimates what you and your family can pay toward your costs for college. Remember that each college or program makes the final decision about how much you and your family can pay. Because of this, the amount that the college or program figures can be higher or lower than the CSS Estimated Contribution.

The CSS will send you a report showing the information that was used to calculate your estimated contribution.

Where do I send the FAF?

If you live in:

send your filled-out FAF to:

College Scholarship Service
Box 380
Berkeley, CA 94701

If you live somewhere other than the places listed above, send your filled-out FAF to the CSS office in Princeton, NJ.

Will the CSS tell me when it has finished analyzing my FAF?

Yes. The CSS will send you an Acknowledgment after it has analyzed your FAF. The Acknowledgment (including your "Estimated Contribution") will be sent to the student's mailing address given in question 2 of the FAF.

The Acknowledgment will list the colleges and programs to which your FAF was sent. If you list more than six colleges to get your FAF, the Acknowledgment will list only the first six. A second Acknowledgment will be sent to you separately which will list the additional colleges.

What if I later want to send my FAF to another college or program?

The Acknowledgment form has a section which you can tear off and send to CSS if you later want to send your FAF to another college or program. The section is called the Additional College Request Form (ACR). The fee for the ACR is $6.50 for the first college or program you list and $4.50 for each other one.

Note: Some colleges and programs may ask you to send a copy of your income tax return to them. If so, send it directly to the college or program. If you don't give the income tax information that is asked for, you may not receive aid. Don't send any income tax forms with your FAF to the CSS.

Filling out a financial aid form is the first step in receiving grants and work study funding.

Students planning on returning to the University in the fall of 1982 found their finances burning on "both ends of the candle," as Doug Whitlock, executive assistant to the president, put it.

For the first time, students faced both a sharp tuition increase and a dwindling supply of financial aid.

The State Council on Higher Education lit one end of the candle with a 15 percent tuition increase for the next two years, which meant in-state students would pay $337 per semester in 1982 instead of $293. The following year would see Kentucky students paying $388 per semester.

Out-of-state students were hit just as hard by the hike. Their tuition would jump from $870 per semester in 1981 to $1,011 in 1982 and $1,163 in 1983.

Meanwhile, the Reagan Administration lit the other end of the candle with the largest proposed cuts in federal financial aid ever. Herb Vescio, director of financial aid, estimated that about 1,000 University students could have their financial assistance cut in 1982-83, and as many as 3,200 in 1983-84, if the "tremendous proposed cuts" were passed by Congress.

At stake for 1982-83 was a $91.4 million cut in national Pell Grants and a $44 million in the College Study Work Program.

"Naturally, when you lose money it's going to hurt somebody," Vescio said. Just how much money would be lost kept him wondering. He and his staff had to delay processing financial aid forms for 1982-83 until Congress acted on Reagan's proposals.

Brightening the prospects somewhat, were about 5,000 student leaders from across the country who gathered in the nation's capitol to protest the pending cuts. Among those lobbying in Washington, D.C., were Student Association President Carl Kremer and Vice-President Neil Dimond, who said they were "flat out" against the proposals.

All The Comforts of Home

An African violet on the dresser, a few throw pillows on the beds, and the dorm room has all the comforts of home. Right? Well, maybe not exactly but some University students used a touch of creativity and made what seemed like a cell-like cubicle into a more than livable room.

Using remnant carpet pieces, posters, contac paper and other decorating knick-knacks, students added a spark to otherwise drab rooms.

We may never see Case Hall featured in Better Homes and Gardens, but sometimes students living on-campus do unique and creative things with their allotted space. All it takes is a little ingenuity.

Elaine Johnson, a resident of Clay Hall has used a little imagination to make her room different from the rest.

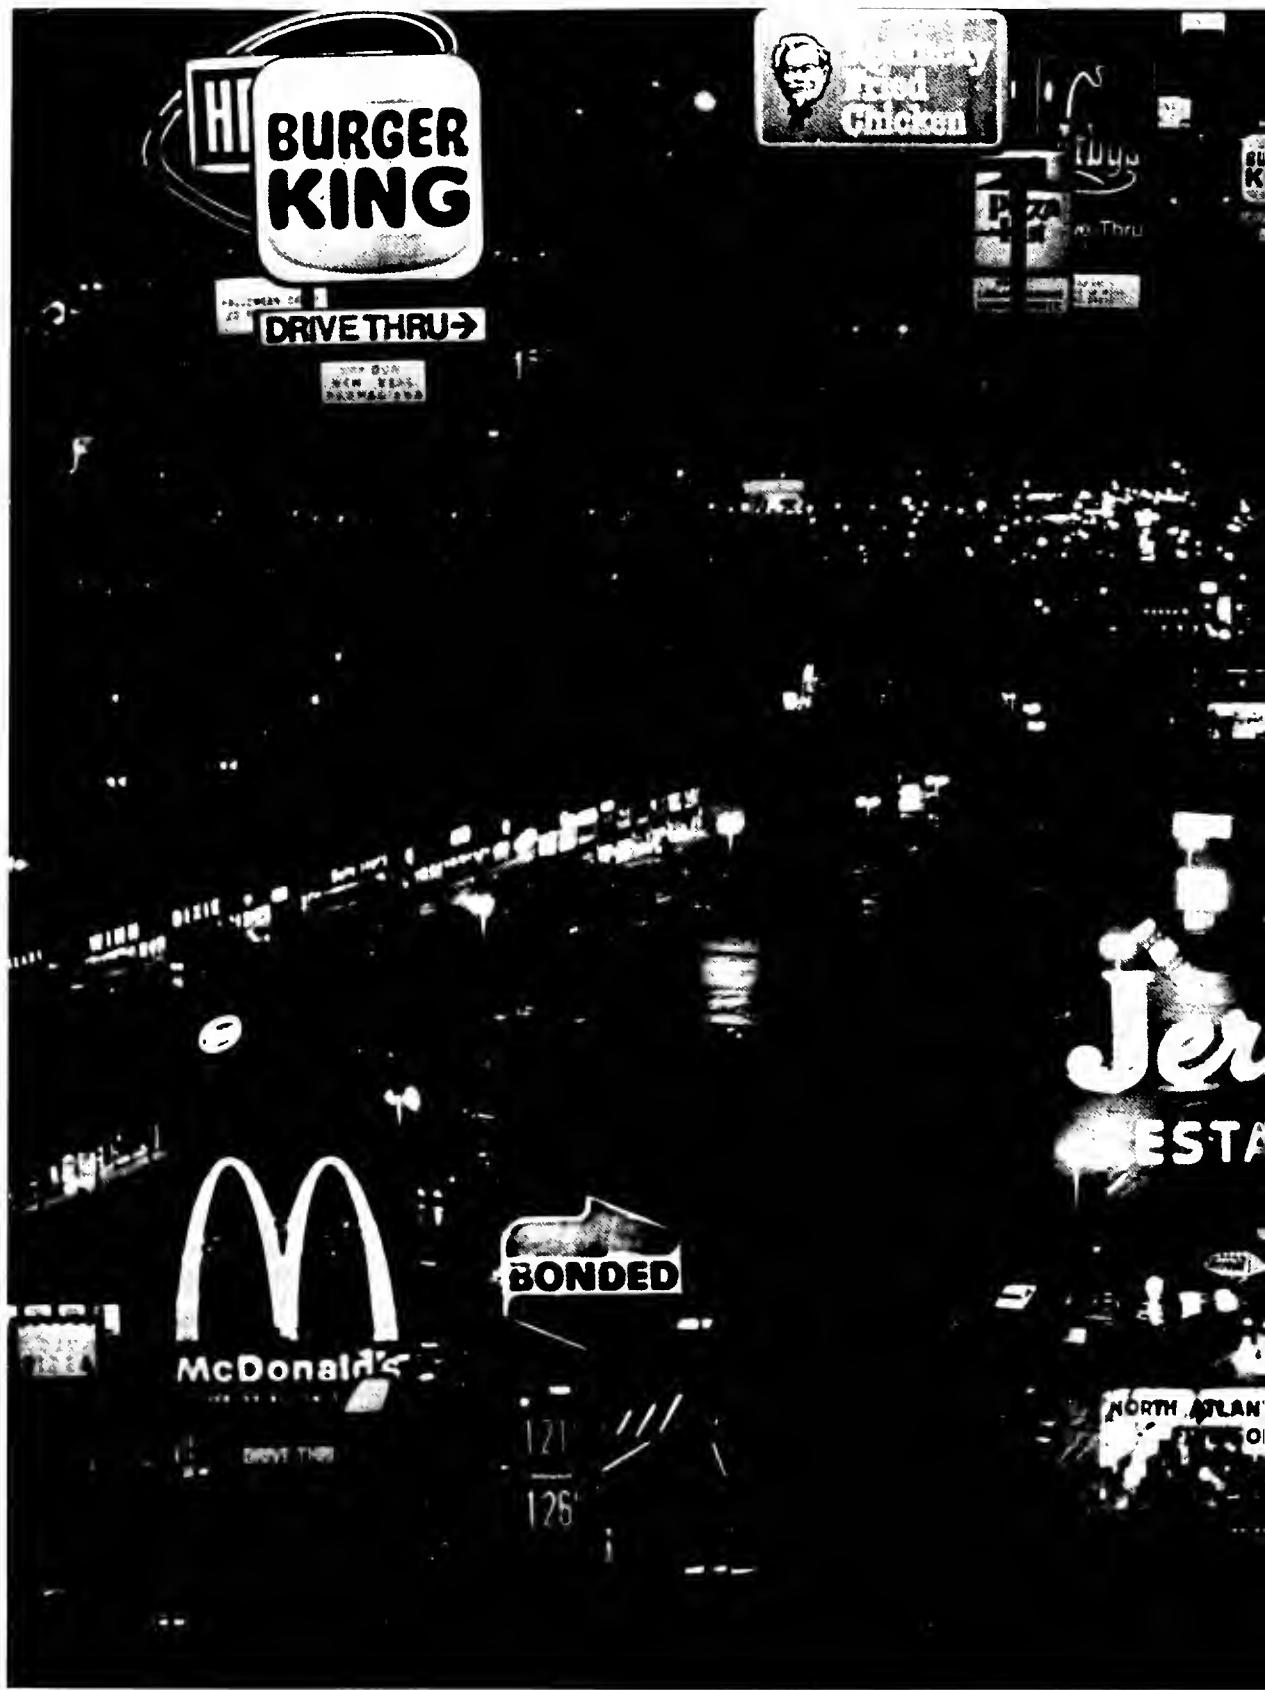

A carpet, some curtains, a few plants, and Pat Hutchins, a resident of Todd Hall, makes his room seem more like home.

Unloading and unpacking isn't as big a job as the one that faces University students once they move in. Making the room livable is the biggest challenge.

When Big E burgers and orange whips get to be too much for University students they can choose from a variety of fast food restaurants along the bypass. The hungry students can satisfy any craving from a single-cheese with ketchup to a bucket of chicken. There is a wide selection to choose from.

Tastes Like Mom Made It

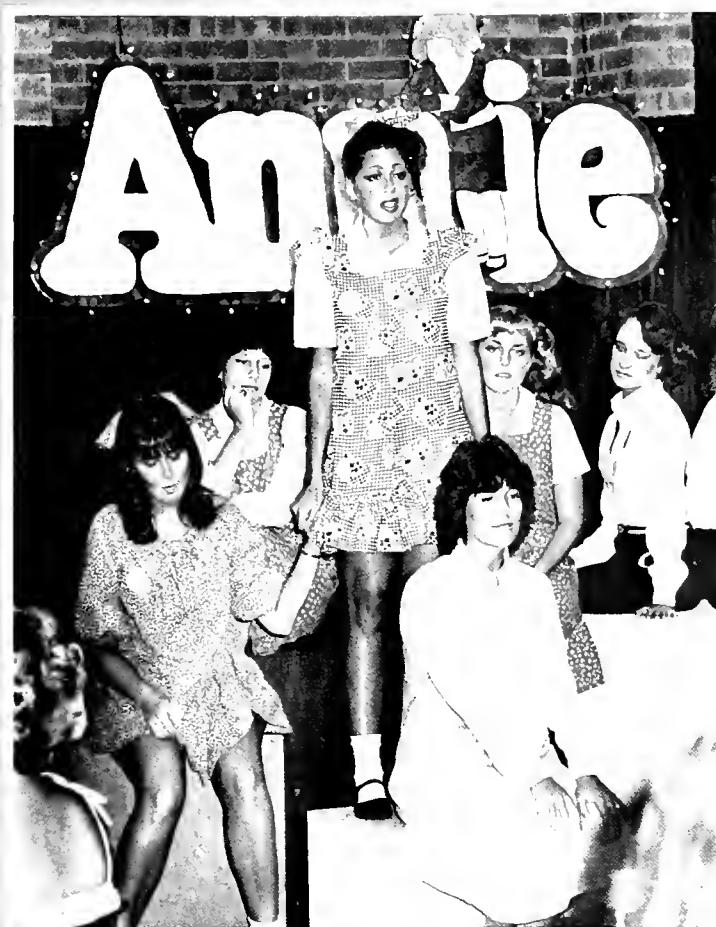

"Ain't no reason to go anywhere else?" Apparently Scott Coltrain thinks so as he enjoys his fries from Wendy's.

As numerous students made their journey to the University cafeteria each day to seek nourishment, so did many students make their daily visits to the fast food chains located on the by-pass.

It was not a rarity to find a class companion to eat with, just look quickly and you could identify Eastern's label on many of the students who seek adventure by eating out. Afterall you could find variety at the chain restaurants along the thoroughfare, and more than likely, a familiar face.

FALL FANCY

Fall is packed with activities for fun-loving University students. Sophomore

Frank Stapleton participates in SAE County Fair activities.

Crisp autumn days mark the advent of sweater weather and football games at the University. An array of gold, red, and orange leaves spot the University making it truly live up to its name "the Campus Beautiful."

Football is one of fall's true harbingers, and the Saturday afternoon games attract many fans of all ages who enjoy cheering on a winning team.

Homecoming

The theme "Games People Play" set the scene for the 1981 Homecoming festivities. All week University students and faculty prepared for the homecoming weekend. Floats in the shape of Rubic's Cubes and video amusement games highlighted the parade. Alumni baseball players carried out the theme also by having the Old Timers reunion game.

The candidates for Homecoming Queen were presented at the formal dance in the Keene Johnson Ballroom and again at the parade before the football game.

The University of Dayton tasted the agony of defeat at the afternoon game. The 5-1 Colonels broke Dayton's 22 game winning streak with a 14-3 victory over the Flyers.

The 1981 Homecoming events begin with the traditional dance held in the Keene Johnson ballroom.

Homecoming Queen

Angela Hamilton

A crisp and colorful October afternoon set the stage for the pre-game coronation of the 1981 Homecoming Queen, Miss Angela Hamilton. Angela, sponsored by Beta Theta Pi Fraternity, is a senior Fashion Merchandising major from Lebanon, Kentucky. She is a captain of the University Cheerleaders, a Beta Theta Pi Fraternity Little Sister and Sweetheart. Angela enjoys horseback riding, swimming and playing the piano and organ.

First Runner - up Robin Modena

Dupree Hall sponsored first runner-up Robin Modena. She is a junior Public Relations major from Bluefield, West Virginia. She is a member of the Public Relations Student Society of America, Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority and Panhellenic. In her spare time, Robin likes to play tennis and racquetball.

Campus involvement is important to Robin Modena who is Rush Chairman of Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority. She is shown here organizing a spring rush party.

Crystal Williams is an honor student who is also involved in several campus organizations. She was selected Outstanding Student of the College of Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

Second Runner - up Crystal Williams

Second runner-up Crystal Williams was sponsored by Alpha Delta Pi Sorority. She is a senior Community Health and Medical Assisting major from Yosemite, Kentucky. She is president of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority, president of Eta Sigma Gamma Health honorary and a Sigma Chi Fraternity Little Sister. Her hobbies are travel and meeting new people.

Attendants

Patty Beil is a junior Marketing major that was sponsored by Combs Hall. She is the president of Delta Zeta Sorority, vice-president of Combs Hall and a Kappa Alpha Fraternity Little Sister. Her hobbies include traveling, meeting people, reading and playing tennis.

Jeanie Morgan is a senior Medical Technology major sponsored by Pi Kappa Alpha Fraternity. She is a member of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority and is the Pi Kappa Alpha Dream Girl. Jeanie likes to snow and water ski, ride horses and meet people.

Traci Wimsatt, a junior sponsored by Commonwealth Hall, is a Public Relations major from Louisville. She is a member of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority and Phi Delta Theta Fraternity Little Sisters. In her spare time, she enjoys playing guitar and singing, traveling and swimming.

Attendants

A senior Broadcasting and Business major from Lexington, Michele Paul was sponsored by Phi Delta Theta Fraternity. Michele is vice-president of Kappa Delta Sorority, vice president of Phi Delta Theta Fraternity Little Sisters and secretary of Alpha Epsilon Rho Broadcasting honorary. In her spare time, Michele plays tennis, takes pictures and enjoys needlepoint.

Karen Fox was sponsored by Theta Chi Fraternity. She is the president of Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority and vice-president of Theta Chi Fraternity Little Sisters. Her hobbies include water sports, riding horses, reading and cooking.

Pamela Whaley, sponsored by Mattox Hall, is a senior majoring in Communications Disorders. She is active in Delta Sigma Theta Sorority and Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity Little Sisters. Pamela likes to swim, crochet, needlework and meet people.

Attendants

Delta Zeta Sorority sponsored Gaye Bush, a senior Spanish and English major from Paintsville. She is a member of Delta Zeta Sorority, Kappa Alpha Fraternity Little Sisters and the Spanish Club. She likes to travel and play racquet ball.

The Reserve Officers Training Corps sponsored Shannon Cunningham, a junior Public Relations major from Lexington. She is a member of Chi Omega Sorority, Catalina Club and is a Sigma Chi Fraternity Little Sister. Shannon likes to water and snow ski, repel, hike and swim.

Sponsored by Case Hall, Amealia Dunn is a freshman Fashion Merchandising major. She is a Lady Diamond and a Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity Little Sister. Her hobbies are sewing, outdoor sports, shopping and being around people.

Attendants

Sophomore Fashion Merchandising major, Lisa Robinson, was sponsored by Clay Hall. Lisa is a Phi Beta Sigma Fraternity Sweetheart, Alpha Kappa Alpha pledge and a member of the Black Student Union. Her hobbies include swimming, dancing, eating and talking.

A sophomore from Trenton, Ohio, Debbie Dunn is a member of Alpha Delta Pi Sorority and the Construction Club. Sponsored by Keene Hall, Debbie enjoys playing the piano and flute, swimming, and collecting elephants.

Lambda Sigma Sophomore Honor Society sponsored Charis Varnum, a Pre-Law major from Russell. She is a member of the Barrister's Society, Judo Team, Christian Student Fellowship and the Karate Club. She enjoys camping, drawing, traveling and playing guitar.

PREP MANIA: alligators aren't just for shoes anymore

It usually begins innocently enough. A button down shirt and crew neck sweater appear to be normal college attire. Then, without warning, plaid pants, penny loafers and designer jeans adorn the body until, finally, a small, foreign object appears on the left chest. An alligator with beady eyes has found its latest victim and trapped him (or her) into (doo doo doo doo) THE PREPPY ZONE.

There's no going back. Add-a-bead necklaces, monogrammed purse covers and every deplorable shade of pink and green covers the helpless victim.

The Prep Mania, once contained in Ivy League schools in the East, has spread throughout the nation and into this "regional" university of Kentucky.

You could be next, for there is no return from (doo doo doo doo) THE PREPPY ZONE.

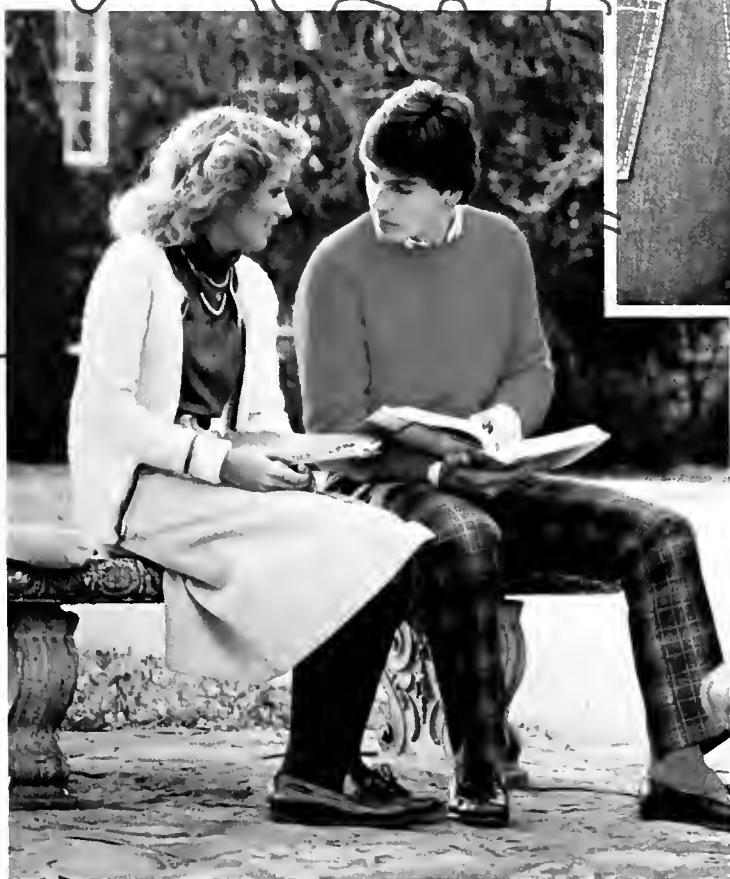

Navy wool blazers and kilts are characteristic of a more conservative strain of prep. Junior Robin Cummins is pictured in this classic look.

Move over Mr. Levi, we've been calvanized. More and more designer names and styles are appearing on the derrieres of many University men and women.

Pink and green is a staple of the true prep's wardrobe. Penny loafers and plaid pants complete the picture. Juniors Andy Gillum and Libby Riley are pictured in the ultimate in prep.

GODSPELL

A Musical Experience

The cast of ten remain on-stage during the entire play. The innocence of childhood is apparent in the clown-like costumes and make-up.

Tim Wells, who played the character representing Jesus, explains the meaning of the parables the "disciples" have acted out.

Jeni Zonchi belts out an up-beat version of the old hymn "Turn Back O Man" in her saucy style.

Although the music has a contemporary feel, its biblical references add meaning to the show.

Although very contemporary, all of the music has biblical reference. For example, "Day by Day" was written in the 12th century as St. Richard's prayer, and "Turn Back O Man" is an old hymn given a new beat.

Directed by Jim Christian, the show was a sell-out nearly every night.

"Godspell" is a celebration, a reaffirmation of faith, a musical experience. Through a series of small skits, the characters present a collection of parables according to the Gospel of St. Matthew.

The bare, cage-like set contrasts sharply to the colorful costumes and make-up worn by the characters who seem to be as children, eager to learn.

From the hilarity of the parable of the prodigal son to the gripping emotion of the crucifixion scene, the audience is mesmerized by the interpretation.

Waylon a pitstop for the Texan cowboy

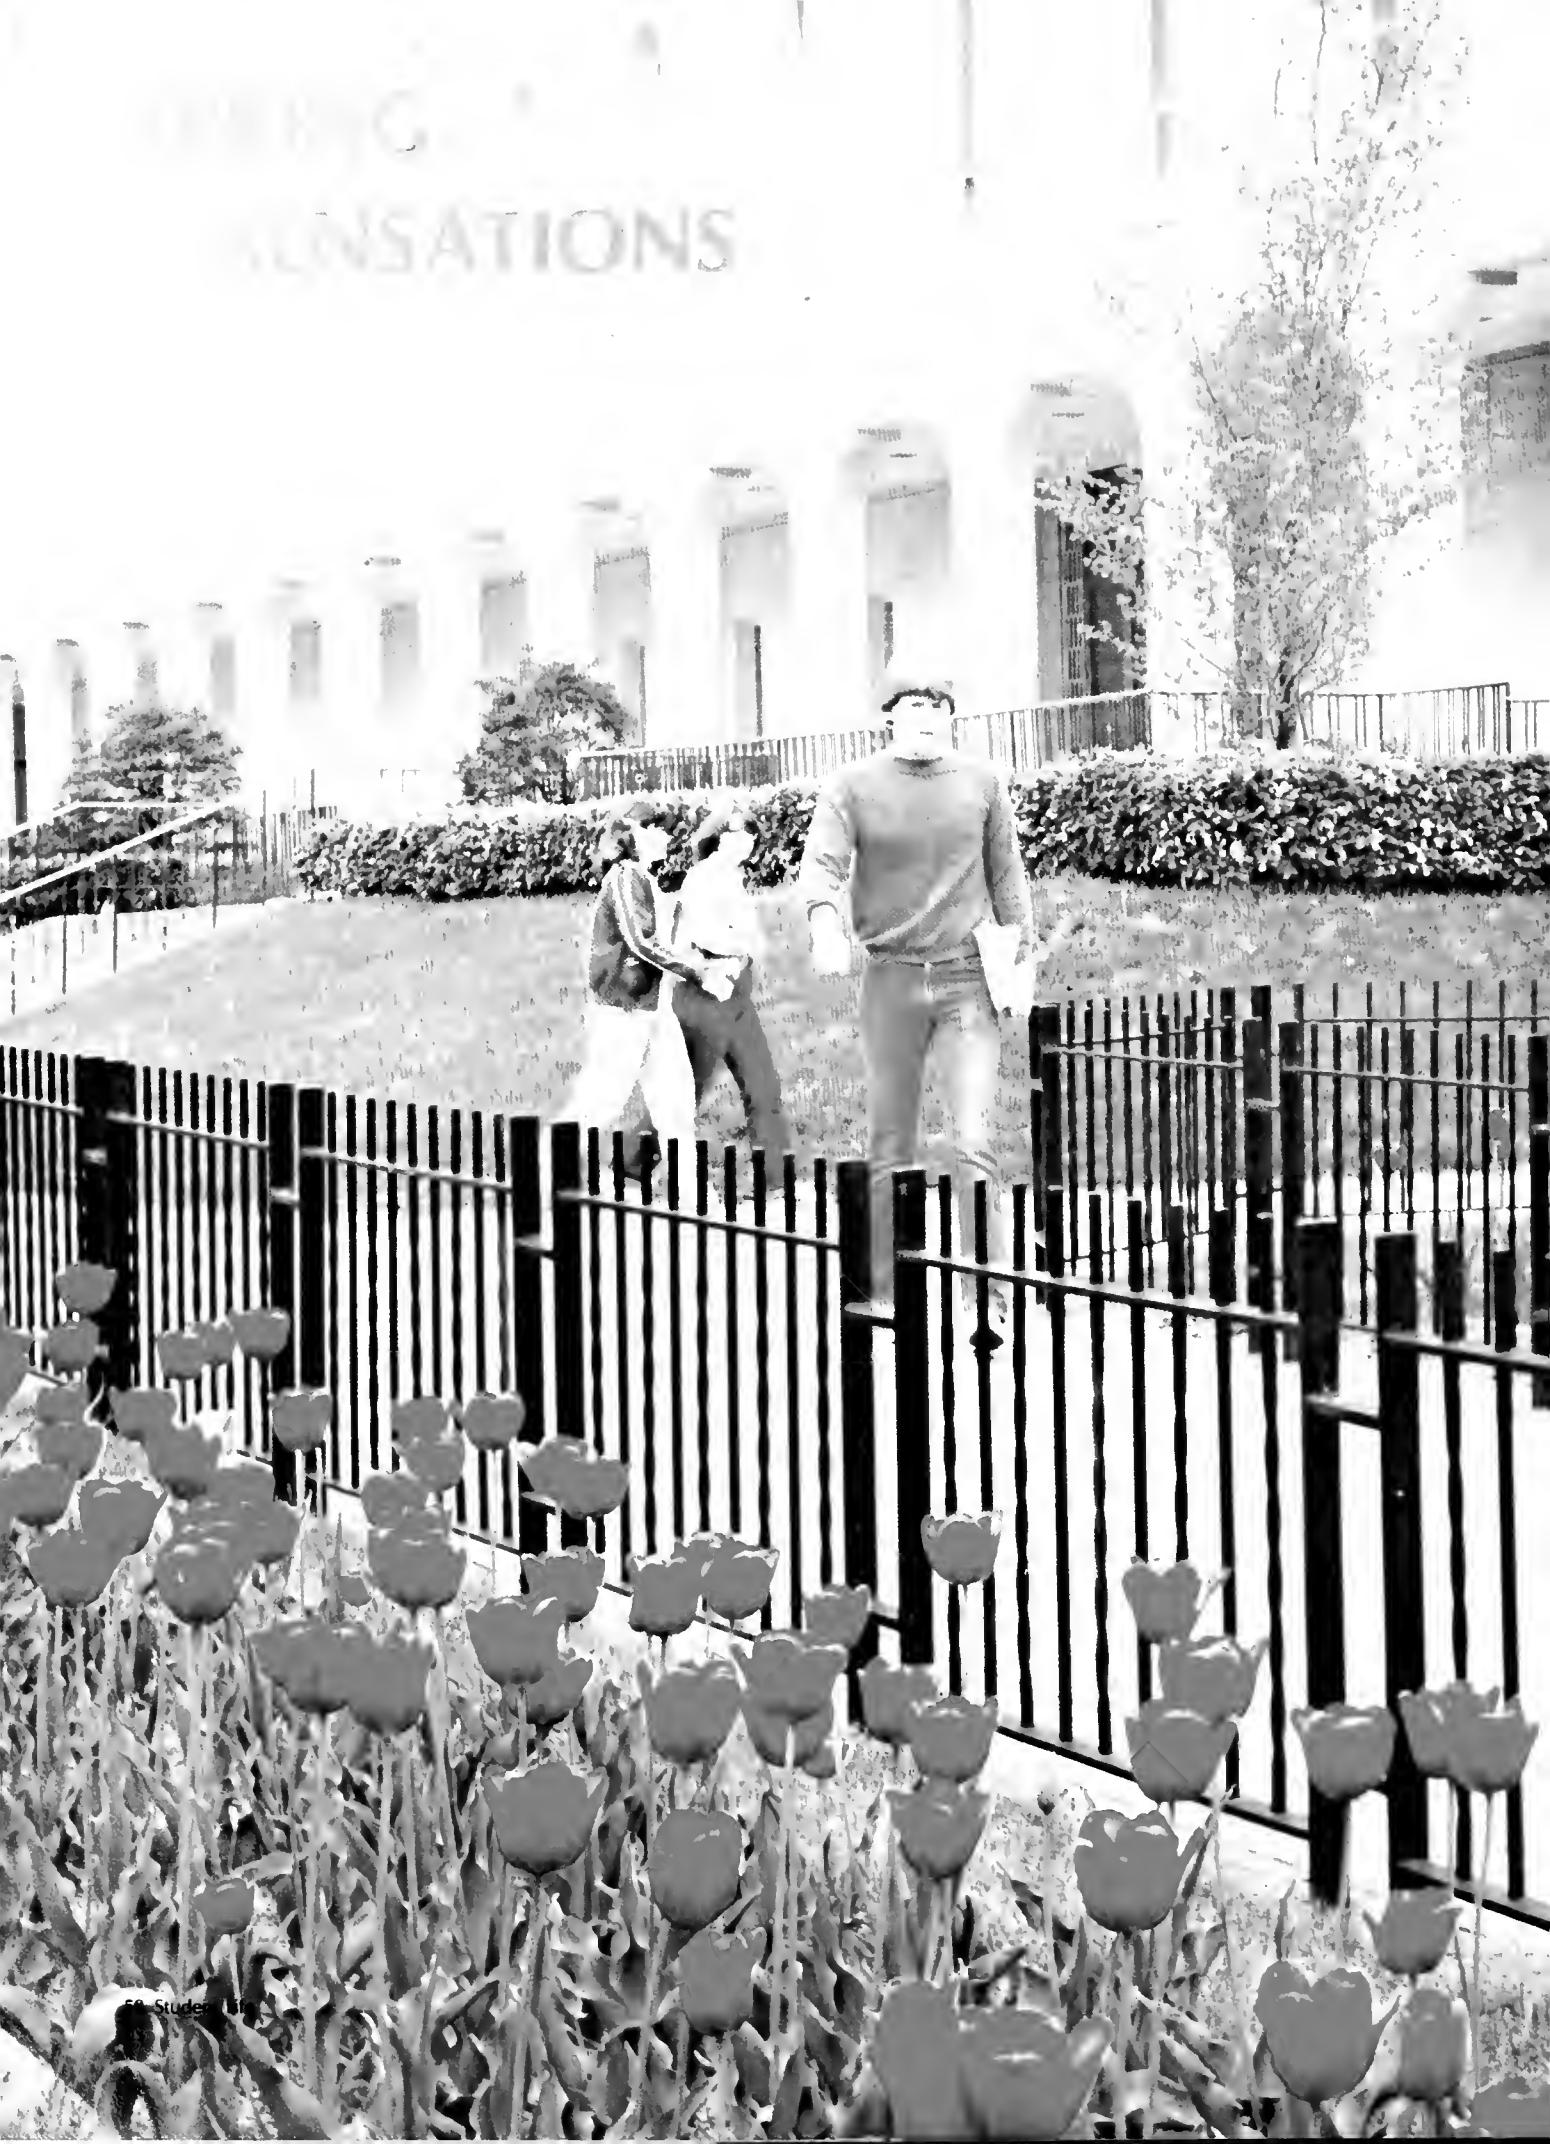

The steel guitar is a standard back-up for any country band.

Waylon Jennings, minus his wife Jessie Coulter performed many of his most popular tunes like "Amanda" and "Mama's Don't Let Your Babies Grow Up to be Cowboys."

Although somewhat under the weather, Waylon Jennings performed for a little over an hour before a crowd of 3300 in Alumni Coliseum in November. The concert was the last of a tour before heading to his home state Texas.

University students spend more time in outdoor activities during warmer months. Members of Alpha Kappa Alpha enjoy the Spring day.

When spring finally rolls around and wakes the University from its winter hibernation, classes fall lower and lower on student's lists of priorities behind napping in the ravine or sunbathing on the roof.

Walking by the ravine on a nice day, one wonders if textbooks make better pillows than reading material.

Warm Weather Acquaintances

As the campus comes alive again after the chillier temperatures of winter warm up, University students catch the annual spring fever. The ravine, downtown and the "corner" are dandy spots for warm weather acquaintances.

Spring fever permeates all areas of the University. Couples can be spotted everywhere as the cool temperatures of winter are over.

The "corner," located between the Powell Building and the University Bookstore, provides a place for meeting and getting acquainted with other students. During the warmer months, the "corner" is buzzing with activity. Most students pass by the area at least once a day.

Friends aren't hard to find in the springtime.

That's my leash! Who's stronger, boy or beast?

The ravine is a handy spot to "catch some rays" (or sleep) in between classes.

The ravine's warmth and fresh air make it a popular place to study.

The Concert Choir below and Show Choir, under the direction of David Greenlee perform throughout the year.

Students do more than eat Big-E burgers in the grill on Wednesday nights. They are entertained by student musicians while they chew.

The jazz pep band entertains the crowd during football games.

Local Talent

The University may not have been blessed with an abundance of concerts this year, but students were not without entertainment. There was a variety of local talent to choose from.

The Concert Choir and Show Choir, under the direction of David Greenlee, kept the University musically entertained throughout the year.

Half-time at Saturday afternoon football games were never boring when the Marching Maroons were on the field.

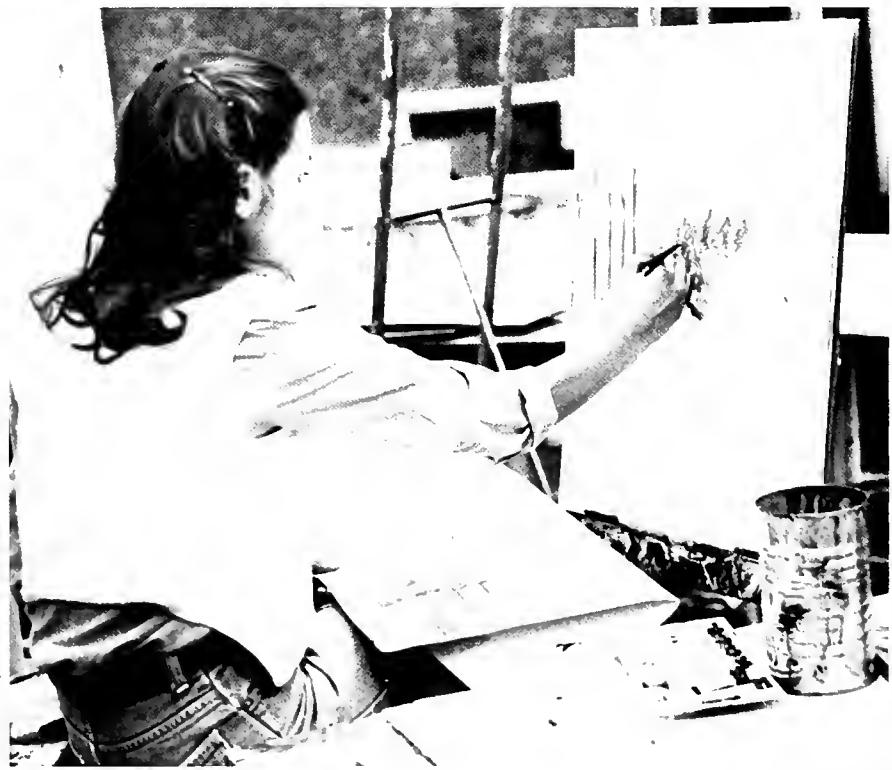

The University Symphony orchestra, directed by Dan Duncan, presents their first of four concerts this year. (Left) Verda Tudor entertains the audience during the Parents Day talent show in October.

The Gifford and Pearl Bu-chanon theaters offered entertainment of a more theatrical nature. The plays "Angel Street," "Tartuffe" and "Da" and the musical "Godspell" were presented.

"Angel Street," directed by Jay Fields, was the first fall production. Cynthia Bledsoe, Robert Hoagland (below) and Gene Elliott (right) are cast members

Students gain practical experience in their classes. Industrial Arts classes are held in the Fitzpatrick Building. The Campbell Building has facilities for artistic students.

December graduating art majors showed their work in the Giles Gallery. The exhibition, entitled "Raiders of the Lost Art" — a pun of a current movie, displayed the work of seniors Robin Caudill, Charlene Clifford, J. David Crowe, Angie Klocke, Randy McMillan and Susan Zimmerman.

RIGHT: Henry Odum, Carol Cornett, Alan Babb and Ray Edwards re-living a memory in "Charlie's" mind. BETWEEN: One of the better performances was given by Odum as the young Charlie providing most of the comic relief in the play. Tracy Remley plays "Mary Tate."

Gene Elliott, as "Charlie," battles with his feelings toward his father, played by Alan Babb.

"DA"

"Da," billed as a contemporary Irish comedy, was the third production presented by the University Theater Department.

The play, written by Hugh Leonard, was about a man, Charlie — played by Gene Elliott — on the day of his father's funeral. Charlie dealt with his feelings of both love and resentment toward his father.

Alan Babb provided the most convincing and in-depth characterization of "Da," a hard-headed dreamer telling his half-truths in his Irish brogue.

Traditional Irish folk music before the play and during intermission added to the atmosphere of an enjoyable show.

Dear Mom,

I've finally made it through my first year of college but I thought I would warn you about my strep throat. Now don't get excited, they told me at the infirmary that it is really a common thing among college students.

The infirmary is a real nice place, Mom. They treat me just like you do. When I had to spend the night for my concussion, they even brought me orange juice.

Then there was the time when I sprained my ankle in P.E. They were nice enough to teach me how to use the crutches before they sent me back to class.

I guess I should have written before now, but the people at the infirmary suggested that I have my wrist x-rayed. It seems I fell off the wall at Horny Corner.

Love,

Your College Coed

P.S. Don't worry, the cast will be off before I get home.

DRIVE PILLS YES, NERD PILLS NO!!

Outside of the Limelight

Those students involved in a Sports Club may have been out of the limelight at the University, but many of them shone among their competition.

The clubs are basically on their own financially, so their strength varies from year to year, according to Jill Schindele, Sports Club Director. "We provide them with facilities, but basically, the students run the club." Money for travel, entry fees, uniforms etc. came from the team members. "These teams are made up of people who are committed to their sport," said Schindele. There are currently 16 Sports Clubs at the University.

SOCER

From a room that looked more like a lived-in den than a professor's office, Soccer coach and Speech and Theater Arts professor Dan Robinette spoke about the rewards and frustrations resulting from his work with the University Soccer Club.

The team didn't just come out on a field and kick a ball around, according to Robinette. Daily scheduled and pre-season practices were an indication that the team was not casual about its sport. "Our competitors don't view us as a club. We play teams with a fully-funded varsity teams on their campuses," said Robinette. "We are a varsity team except in terms of money."

Their record was proof of that. The University Soccer Club has been the State Champion the last two years.

Meeting expenses was the frustrating part of involvement with the Soccer Club. The University Sports Club program paid for referee fees, equipment and membership to the Kentucky Intercollegiate Soccer Association. The team picked up the rest of the tab including uniforms, cleets and traveling expenses.

"I understand the University needing to save money, but it still is rather frustrating," said Robinette. "I could run a bona fide Soccer program on just what the University invests in tape for the football team."

JUDO

The University Judo Club began as a spark in the mind of club president Price Jacobs five years ago. Since then it has become the largest Judo Club in the state.

Without being able to offer scholarships, the Club could not recruit as well as fully-funded teams at other Universities. Almost all of the team members came to Eastern un-ranked, according to Jacobs, a senior Industrial Arts major and a third degree black belt. "Even though we can't get a good draw, we aren't doing badly," he said. Not doing badly included having two team members, Connie Hunter and Vickie Eckhart, place first and second in the State for two consecutive years, and then qualifying for the Nationals in Little Rock, Arkansas. The team also boasted four black belted members.

Achieving success among the competition is somewhat bittersweet when the recognition for it is at a minimum, according to Jacobs. "We have three trophies over four feet tall and no place to put them," he said.

"I would like to see Judo made a minor sport here at Eastern," said Jacobs. "It's sad to see some of the other minor sports with people on full tuition when they aren't winning any championships."

The frustration of meeting financial responsibilities with little share of the limelight could be tough to take. Was it worth it? "Beyond a shadow of a doubt," said Jacobs. "We have 75 to 150 people show up for our beginners classes, and the brown belt members teach them," he said. "We're going to make sure this thing doesn't die."

Sports Club members learn skills such as leadership, fund raising and public relations that the coaches of varsity teams usually handle. "They may not see the benefits now, but they will in the future," said Schindeler. "They really love their sport, and that results in a quality team member."

Graduation Is A Family Affair

A student sets herself apart from the crowd saying hello to "Pop" during the graduation ceremony.

Last spring, just like every other year, University students and their families gathered at Hanger Field to receive their reward for four years of studying and bill paying — a diploma.

Mothers, fathers and grandparents gathered to witness the transition of their loved one from being a student to a member of the "real world."

For the student, graduating was a bittersweet experience. The satisfaction of accomplishment was marred by the sadness of goodbyes to friends that may only be seen again at class reunions. The memories of lunch at Ma Kelly's, Thursday night downtown, Saturday afternoon football games and Homecoming dances became a cherished part of the years that would later be called the best years of their lives.

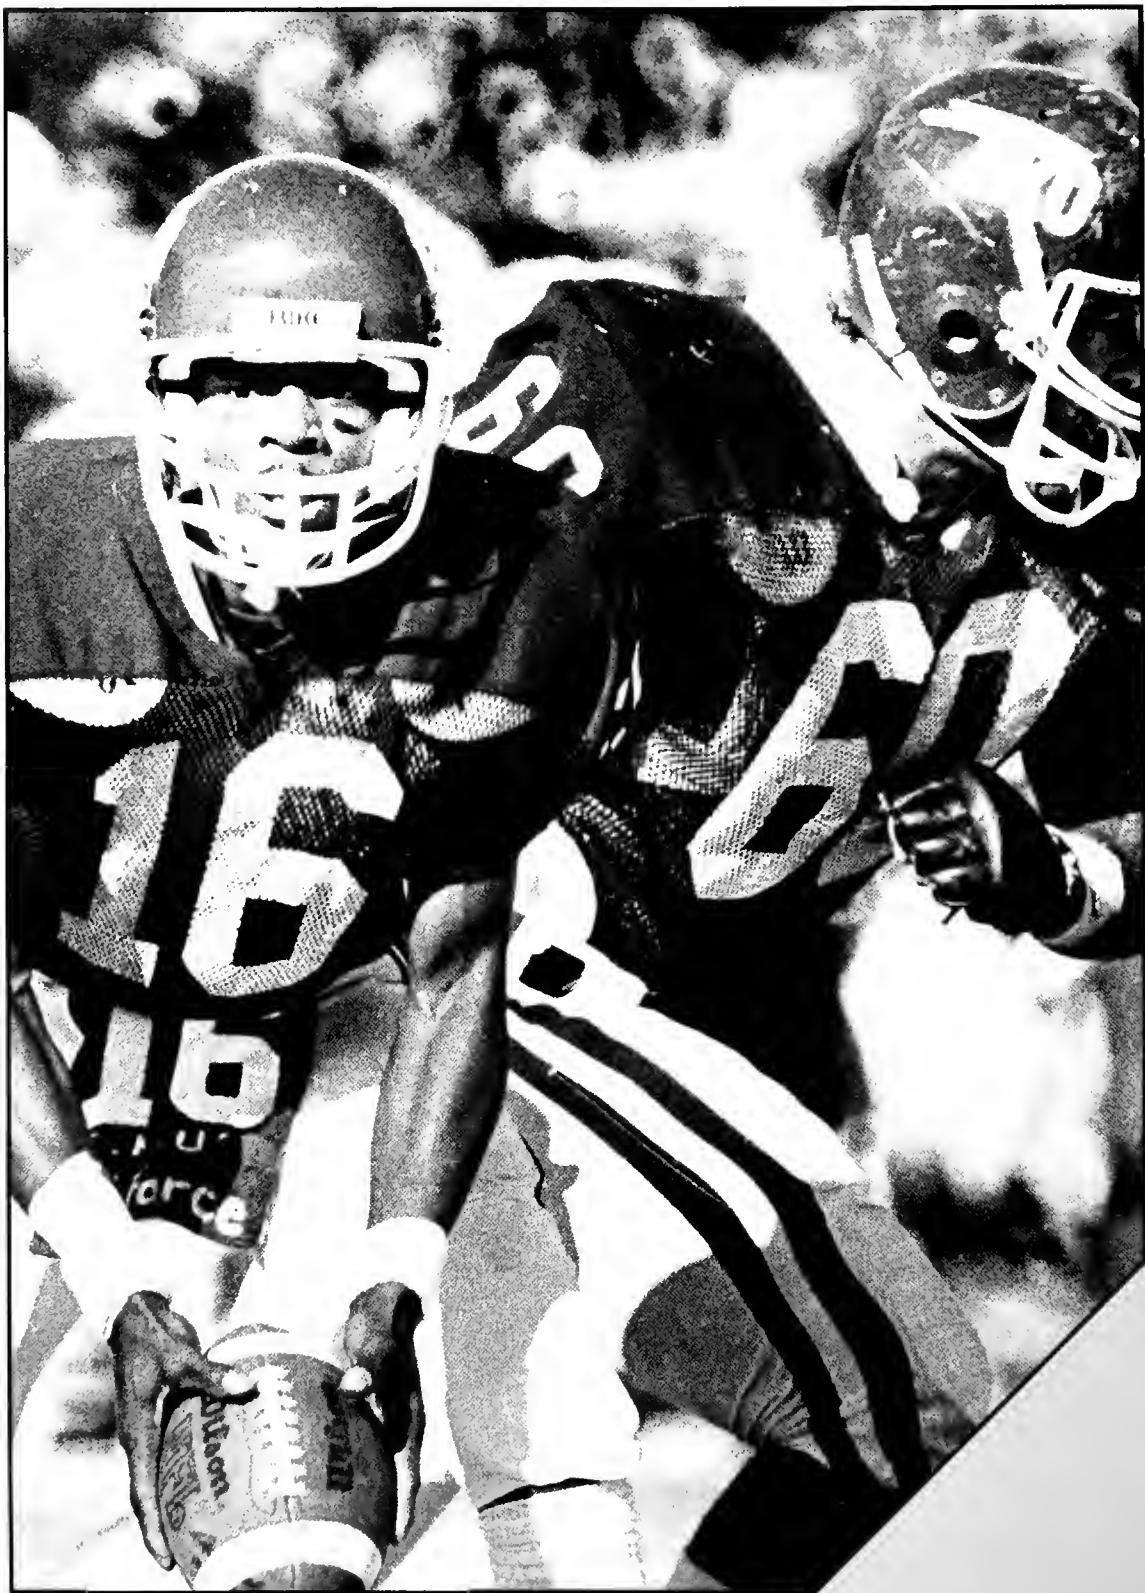

In one afternoon a lifetime accomplishment was celebrated with those who made it possible — the student's friends and family.

After the speeches and "Pomp and Circumstance," University students celebrate the climax of the last four years with mixed emotions.

College graduation affects not only the graduate. Along with birth, baptism and matrimony, graduation is a family affair.

Coach Roy Kidd Receives Coach of The Year Titles

Kidd surveys the snowy field during the Boise State playoff game held in Idaho.

Following the loss to Idaho State in the Division I-AA championship game, Head Football Coach Roy Kidd told the Colonels, "Don't mope around. Getting here is a hell of an accomplishment . . . We've had a great season."

And what a season it was. With the guidance of Coach Kidd, the Colonels conquered the loss of 13 starters from last year's team and went on to conquer football team after football team on the trail to the Pioneer Bowl.

In recognition of Kidd's coaching talents he was named NCAA Division I-AA Coach of the Year for the second consecutive year. This season's victories brought his record at the University to 133-55-6, making him the all-time winningest coach in the Ohio Valley Conference.

Kidd is at home with his players on the sidelines.

Appreciation of Kidd's accomplishments also came from the Colonel's athletic conference, and he was chosen as Ohio Valley Conference Coach of the Year for the '81 season.

Kidd first came to the University as a student. The Corbin, Kentucky, native excelled in both football and baseball during his collegiate career and was named All-American in 1953.

Following several successful years as a high school coach at Richmond Madison, he returned to college football as an assistant coach at Morehead in 1962, and came back to the University as an assistant coach in 1963.

Taking over as head coach in 1964, Kidd has been at the Colonel helm for 18 seasons.

Kidd is swarmed by Colonel fans on the field following the Delaware playoff game at Hanger Field.

Football 1981

A MATTER

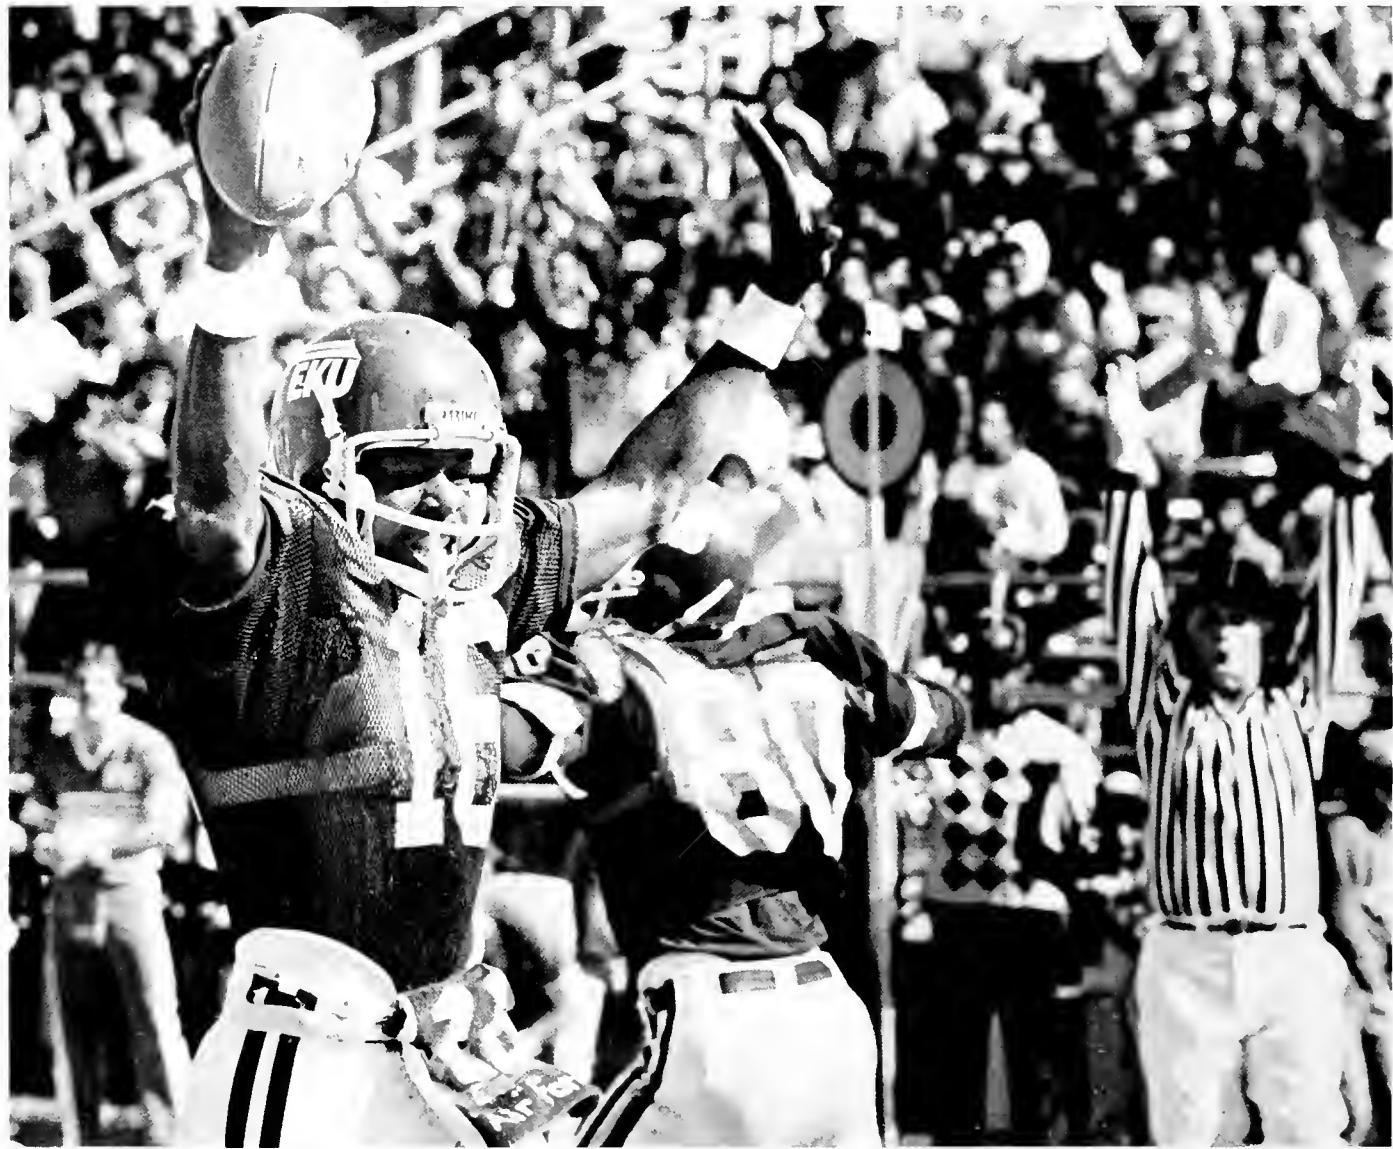

The fall of 1981 continued the establishment of the Colonels as a powerhouse in Division I-AA football. For the third consecutive year the team progressed to the national championship game of the four-year-old play-offs. For the second year the Colonels were the runner-up team in the title game, losing to Idaho State by a score of 34-23 in the Pioneer Bowl at Wichita Falls, Texas.

For the city of Richmond, the University and the Colonel fans, football 1981 was A MATTER OF PRIDE.

OF PRIDE

Seniors Earn Honors, Set Records

Quarterback Chris Isaac raises his hands in triumph after scoring one of the eight touchdowns he made during the 1981 season.

Every team has its leaders; the players that stand out from the rest and go the extra mile. For a championship team like the Colonels, that extra mile resulted in outstanding performances and collegiate career records that a player in any division would be proud of.

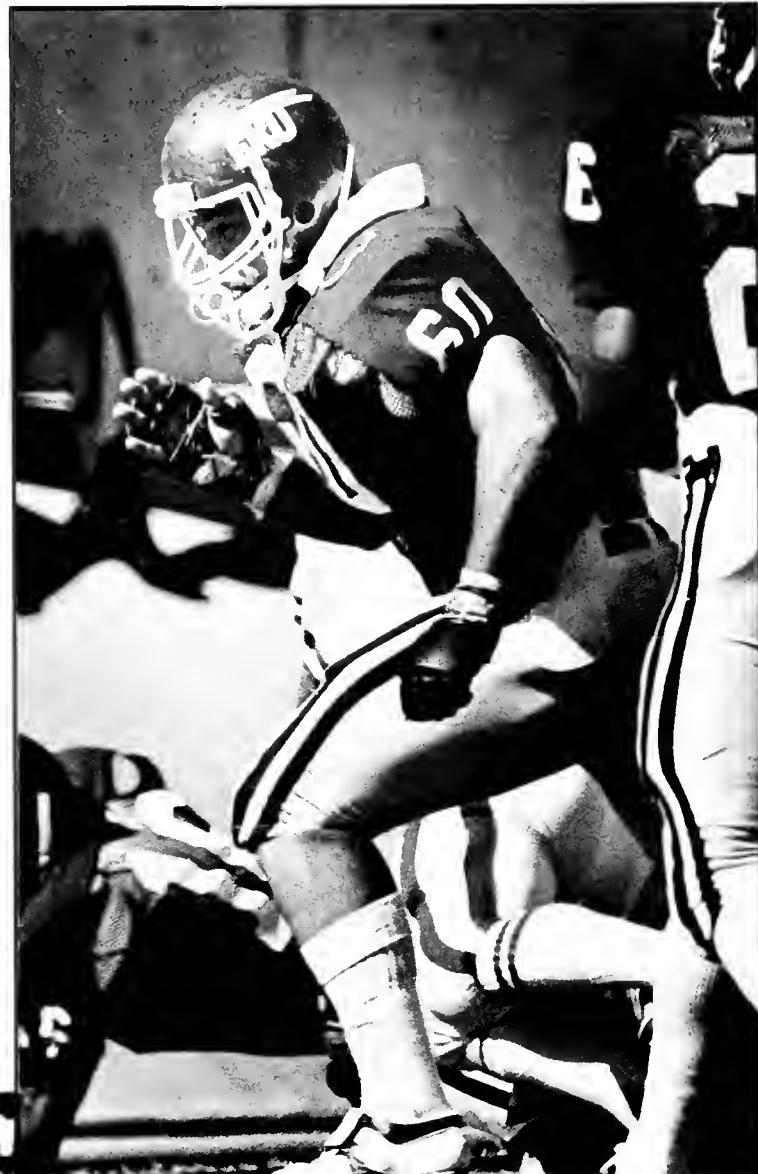

The navigator of the Colonels squad, quarterback Chris Isaac, was chosen as the team's most valuable offensive player. He completed 100-201 passes in 1981, for 1,683 yards and had a career record of 266-456, passes for 3,611 yards.

As the defensive leader defensive back George Floyd was selected as the Ohio Valley Conference most valuable defensive player. Floyd set a season record of 10 pass interceptions and was named to the Kodak I-AA First Team All-American Squad.

His most memorable interception of the year came in the end zone against Murray State, a game the Colonels won 24-20.

His season records included most punts returned, 36, and most yards on punt returns, 314.

Floyd also had a University teammate on the Kodak All-American Squad. Guard Kevin Greve, one of the offensive captains, was named to the group chosen by the American Football Coaches Association.

Defensive Back George Floyd exhibits his quickness against the Western Kentucky University Hilltoppers.

A Season To Remember

In the 1981 Homecoming Game, the Colonels hosted the Dayton Flyers, a team that held a national winning streak coming into the match up at Hanger Field.

The Colonels snapped the Flyers' winning streak with a 14-3 score, but probably what the Flyers remembered most about the game was an 87-yard reverse for a touchdown by flanker Jerry Parrish.

Parrish ended his career at the University this season and set individual Ohio Valley Conference records in two categories. He had a total of 2,072 yards for kickoff returns and averaged 28 yards for the best kickoff return average.

Parrish was also among the players that set University records this season with most kickoffs returned, 24, and most yards on kickoff returns, 716.

And not all of the Colonels' season standouts were seniors. Sophomore Terence Thompson could have easily given senior tailbacks lessons in rushing.

Thompson broke into the starting lineup after senior tailback Tony Braxton was injured during the second game of the season.

He also set a new school record for rushing against the University of Akron Zips. Putting his mark in the record book, he rushed for 293 yards on 17 carries to break the old record of 252 set by Stan Mitchell in 1975. Thompson missed setting an OVC record by only five yards.

Senior flanker Jerry Parrish makes a catch during the Colonels' 63-10 win over Tennessee Tech.

Defensive End Richard Richardson tackles a South Carolina player in the opening home game of the 1951 season.

The Records Will Never Be The Same

In addition to another national runners-up title, the Colonels added accomplishment to achievement this season by setting new University records.

The road to Wichita Falls also included winning the Ohio Valley Conference, with an 8-0 mark, for the first time since 1976. In addition, the OVC crown meant an on the road win over Murray for the first time in nine years.

By the time the last game was over the team had amassed a four-year winning streak at Hanger Field, not losing in 25 home games since 1977. This feat also enabled the Colonels to set a new school record of 12 wins in one season.

New records were not only set in the win category, but also in yardage, interceptions and extra point listings.

A total of 5,006 yards were gained in 14 games, with 3,078 as the new total for rushing.

The number of points scored during the season were 375, with other point records being set at 41 extra points kicked and 48 touchdowns scored.

A team record was also set in pass interceptions, with a total of 26, 23 of which were intercepted by the secondary.

New records were not easy to come by for the Colonel team. The season's schedule was rated the third toughest in the nation by the NCAA Statistics Service, with the team's card listed in the I-AA category behind Rhode Island and Connecticut of the Yankee Conference.

Separating the men from the boys and determining champions was what the NCAA Division I-AA playoffs were all about.

For the third consecutive year the Colonels were among the eight teams to vie for one of the two spots in the championship game to be held at the Pioneer Bowl in Wichita Falls, Texas.

After the final drawings for the playoffs were made, Coach Kidd said he believed if the Colonels could make it to the Pioneer Bowl, they deserved to be there. Kidd knew that his team had a long hard road ahead of them if they made it to Wichita Falls.

The first opponent for the colonels came to their home turf as they met the University of Delaware at Hanger Field.

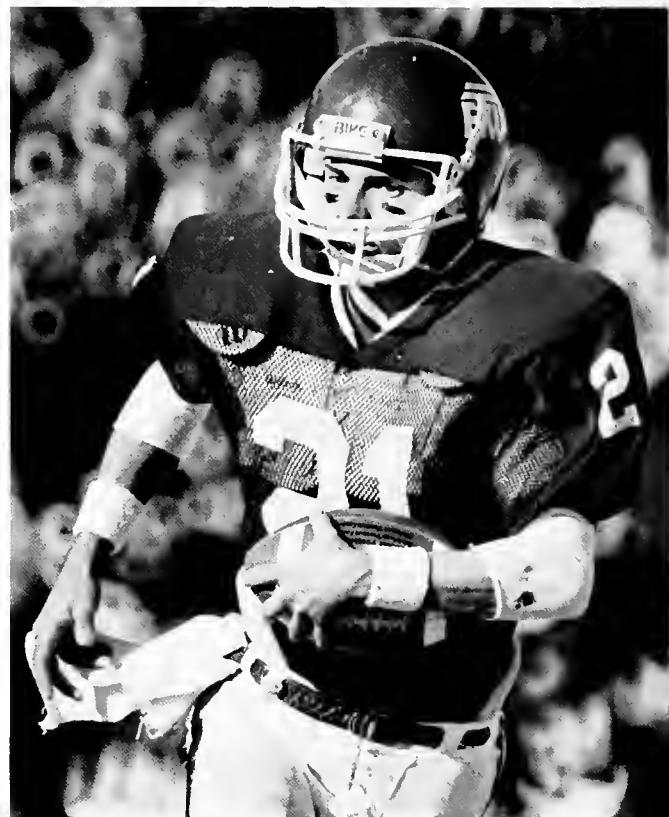

The home team used a last minute 32-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Chris Isaac to flanker Ranard McPhaul to beat Delaware 35-28 in a hard-fought battle.

The next stop on the road to the Pioneer Bowl required the Colonels to take the Boise, Idaho, exit.

In a game that was dominated by the Colonels, the team sought and got their revenge for a last second loss to Boise in the national championships last year by winning the game 23-17.

Sophomore tailback Ed Hairston helped provide the strength and quickness the team needed to beat Boise and was selected as the most valuable player of the game.

It was on to Wichita Falls.

The team takes the field in Wichita Falls, Texas.

The middle of December once again found the University charging up for a national championship game. Played in Wichita Falls, Texas, the Pioneer Bowl matched the Colonels against the undefeated Bengals of Idaho State.

The team's third consecutive trip to the Division I-AA finals brought support from throughout the state as the Colonel Caravan traveled west to "Mash Idaho."

Complete with a preliminary chili supper and downtown parade, the game proved to be a classic showdown between the Colonel's ground attack and the Bengal's air assault.

Though the arms of quarterback Mike Machurek, who threw for 330 yards, Idaho State managed to stop the unstoppable Colonel defense.

Down by 28-9 at the end of the first half, the Colonels scored 14 points in the second half, but still could not overcome the Idaho State offense and lost only their second game of the season 34-23.

Despite the loss, the Colonels had found their place in the history books as the team that played in three of the first four championship games of I-AA football, and the University was established as a football power to be reckoned with.

"GO BIG 'E'"

. . . the oath of office for the 1981-82 cheerleading squad. Letting their enthusiasm and energy radiate, the squad led the football and basketball teams and fans in spirit throughout the seasons. This year's squad was one of the most traveled in the University's history. They went to Annapolis, Maryland for the Navy game, to Boise, Idaho for the NCAA play-off game against Boise State, and to Wichita Falls, Texas for the Pioneer Bowl against Idaho State.

1982 – Season of Youth

Freshman center Mike Budzinski battles for the tip during a jump ball against Austin Peay. Rieser is one of four transfer students on the '82 team.

Before the 1981-82 basketball season began, Head Coach Max Good said, "Our season will be one which will be full of question marks, highlighted by youth and inexperience. They'll play hard, though, with a determination and intensity which hopefully could make us a respectable basketball team by the end of the year."

Half-way through the season the Colonels were 3-14, and he was still optimistic. "Our goal is still to be a respectable ball club by the end of the year," he said.

By the end of the season, however, the overall record was still heavy in the loss column at 5-21.

With only two returnees from last year's team, "youth" and "inexperience" were phrases that haunted the colonels throughout the season.

For Colonel Basketball

This was also Good's first year as head coach and seven of the team's 14 players were freshmen.

The Colonels were led in scoring by two transfer students, junior guard Jimmy Stepp and sophomore guard Frank Baines.

Despite the team's record, Good wasn't disappointed with the effort put forth by his players.

"I haven't been disappointed. Period. I think the effort has been there and our execution has been fairly good," he said.

Lack of disappointment, however, did not take away the frustrations of the season.

"You sit there and want to put your head in your hands and scream," Good explained, "With this team we've had to accept winning within losses. Even though in the final outcome, we've lost as far as the score is concerned, we have done something well in many of our losses."

Coach Max Good sets up a play during a time-out in the game against the Murray Racers. The 1982 season was Good's first year as head coach.

The women's basketball team was off to a quick start in the 1981-82 season. Compiling a 7-2 record early in the schedule, Coach Diane Murphy had a team she could brag about.

With high hopes of improving from last year, the Colonels' talent often shined through despite suffering several losses, which included Florida A&M and arch-rival Western Kentucky.

Featuring a balanced scoring attack, sophomore Lisa Goodin led the Colonels down the court as the leading scorer and free-throw shooter.

Forwards Tina Wermuth and Sandra Mukes contributed to the team's performance, with the help of Chancellor Dugan, by maintaining scoring averages in double figures throughout the season.

Dr. Murphy was in her third year of coaching at the University and described the team as "working hard all year long" and "plays an exciting brand of basketball."

The overall record of 14-16 was a disappointment to the team's ambitious performance at the beginning of the season.

The Colonels averaged 76.0 points and 45.8 rebounds per game.

The Colonels' field hockey squad finished the year with a 12-5-4 record. The team blasted through their first 10 opponents, going undefeated.

The high point of the season came when they swept the Big Ten by beating Ohio State, Purdue and Indiana.

The team was beaten in the Region II tournament by North Carolina, 2-0.

Wilma Howard, a junior, led the team with 10 individual goals for the season. Four seniors that had started since their freshmen year also led the team: Jean Dickson, Theresa Lang, Laura Purdy and Debbie Wright.

Eve Combs and Jenny Taulbee pace themselves through the cross country course at Arlington, the University's country club.

Determination.

This was the word Coach Sandra Martin used to describe her 1980 cross country team.

According to Martin, the team did "very well" considering how young they were in terms of experience at a collegiate level. Nevertheless, the team improved tremendously in one season.

Freshman Lisa Renner, from Cincinnati, Ohio, and Sophomore Maria Pazarentzos, from Springfield, Ohio, qualified for state and later the two advanced to regionals and nationals, respectively.

In their regional competition, Renner placed second and Pazarentzos placed third, and Renner also won the OVC Championships.

The 1981 men's cross country team had a respectable year, with several performers doing better than was expected. Coach Rick Erdman was proud of the seven-member squad that placed third in the Ohio Valley Conference.

Top performers on the team were Tim Mack and Tim Langford. Both scored in the top ten in OVC competition. Mack and Langford were the only competitors from the team to go to regional competition.

Also performing well was junior Mike Johnson, placing high in several meets throughout the season.

It was an emotional year, as EKU said goodbye to its men's gymnastics team, after 13 years of competition. Because of cuts in the athletic budget, gymnastics is being dropped as a competitive sport. Paced by senior co-captain Dave Smith and sophomore all-around man Peter Ruffu, the team finished the season with a record of 7-8, including finishing second out of five tough teams in the prestigious Miami Cup Invitational. The team also competed in the Southern Regional Competition in Atlanta, Georgia. Peter Ruffu set a new team record in the all-around this year with a score of 51.2. Head coach Gerald Calkin said of his team, "They are the finest group of gymnasts Eastern has ever had."

Gymnasts Go Out In Style, A.I.A.W. Regional Champions

While most of the University student body ate home cooked meals or basked in the Florida sunshine over spring break, eight young women worked out in the overly warm Weaver gym in preparation for their final bow as a University sport at the A.I.A.W. Regional Championships at East Tennessee State U. The gymnasts had something to prove. Perhaps they wanted the University to feel bad about losing a good program to budget cuts rather than feel good about losing a bad program, but in any case, it was appropriate that the gymnasts went out in style — winning style.

At the season's finish, three University records were broken, 17 regional awards won, three regional titles captured, and the gymnasts won their first-ever A.I.A.W. team championship.

Electrifying Eels Hold Tough Schedule

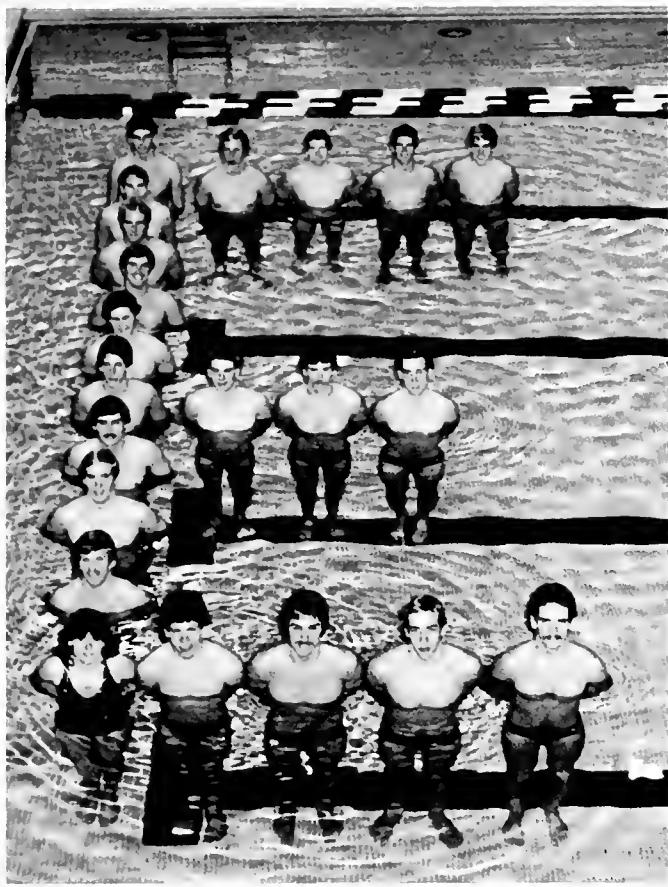

EKU's electrifying Eels were led to their victories by head coach Dan Lichity, who entered his 7th year as head coach and his 13th year with the Eels. Coach Lichity was assisted this season by Tim Cahill, Scott Barber and Chris Gray.

The Eels held a very tough schedule and some stiff competition from the Big 10, S.E.C., Big 8 and from some of the top independent schools in the Midwest.

Much of the success came from Brian Conroy, a junior from Satellite Beach, Florida, and Scott Behymer, a junior from Vero Beach, Florida. These two outstanding swimmers were urged on by their team captain, Louis Fister, a senior from Lexington, Kentucky.

Rifle Team Places Third In Nationals

Despite cutbacks in the athletic budget, the University rifle team proved themselves this year by capturing the third place overall finish in the NCAA National Championships. Karen Long led the team with 1,165 score in small bore competition, followed by Dan Durben with 1,164.

Sgt. Nelson Beard, the rifle team coach stated, "Even when the budget has been cut, if you've got the spirit to win, you can win."

A few highlights from this season, included placing second overall at Ohio State, and finishing first in the air rifle competition. They also placed second in small bore and third in air rifle at the Western Kentucky University Tourney, and finished first in small bore and air rifle competition at the University of Kentucky Tourney.

Sgt. Beard said, "I feel very confident in saying that four of our members will make All-American this year." Some of their outstanding members this season are Kimberly Floer, Karen Long, and Dan Durbin.

"We're really pleased with the team and the fine season they've had, and all five of our shooters are eligible to attend the U.S. Olympic tryouts," concluded Sgt. Beard.

Karen Long was team high scorer in the NCAA National Finals.

Colonels Swing Into Action

When the 1980 golf season opened Coach Ray Struder found himself with only two returning seniors. These members were Mike Frey and Gary Fischer.

The Colonels, who were the reigning OVC champions from 1980, had to defend their title during 1981. Yet even with their hard work, when the season ended, the Colonels found themselves fourth in the OVC.

Unknown until the end of the season was the fact that this was Coach Struder's last year. Bobby Seaholm was named as the new coach for the 1982 season.

Was Record Setting Year For Colonels

The 1981 EKU Baseball team had a record setting year for victories with 37 wins, 21 losses, and one tie, according to head coach Jim Ward.

The team placed second in the OVC tournament behind Middle Tennessee, with three members named to the All-Conference team: Mark Klein, Jeff Lehkamp, and Dominic Perrino. Scott Earl was named to the second team of the NCAA All-South Regional Team. After graduation Earl signed with the Detroit Tigers.

Dave Carroll, Scott Earl, Bud Friess, Mark Klein, Jeff Lehkamp, Joe Meyers, Scott Quesnel, and Mike Woehler all had outstanding batting averages above .300. Jeff Lehkamp led the Colonels with his batting average of .376.

Pitcher David Bault contributed to the Colonels record setting year with his 2.74 ERA.

Men's Track Places Fourth In OVC

The 1981 men's track team had their best OVC performance in sometime, according to head coach Rick Erdman.

Spurred on by a tremendous team spirit, the team placed fourth in the Ohio Valley Conference meet and tied with Clemson and the University of Arizona for 33rd place, against more than 200 powerful teams in the NCAA championship meet held in Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

Like a carbon-copy of last year, Kenneth Glover, a senior from Gladstone, VA, again had an outstanding season. Glover, a three time All-American holds the OVC indoor and outdoor track record, and won the high jump event in the prestigious Penn Relays.

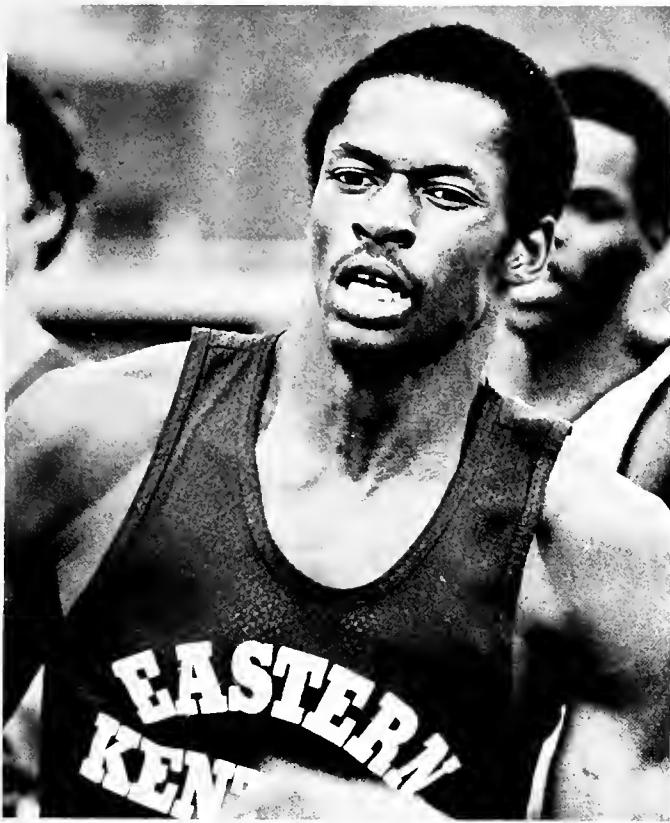

Glover's teammate Kelvin Lewis, a junior from Detroit, MI, won the 800 meter OVC champion.

Make Nationals

This year's women's track team did reasonably well. They finished 3rd in the OVC after being defending champions from both seasons prior. The team had two women qualifying for the AIAW Championships. Junior Holly Foster competed in the 100-meter hurdles, and Sue Schaefer, a senior, participated in the 5000-meter run and placed 5th overall in the national competition of that event. Schaefer was named All-American for the second time in her career. A promising freshman this year was Maria Pazarentzos, who finished 2nd just behind Sue Schaefer in both the 1500 and 3000-meter runs in the OVC Championships. The team also finished 4th in the KWIC Championship this year.

President Powell generates students support at University's Higher Education rally.

In 1981 budget cuts were the main concern of J.C. Powell, president of the University. Powell commented, "Lately budget cuts have come so thick and fast that it's hard to keep track of which one you're talking about."

"Early in 1981, we were advised of a reduction in our state appropriation for 1981-82. It not only continued the reduction we had experienced the previous year, but added to it about another $1 million. So, in effect, our appropriation for the present fiscal year is around $2 million less than was originally approved by the 1980 general assembly."

"We are examining a no-increase budget for 1982-83 which, actually, turns out to be a reduction budget when we consider the impact of inflation. After meeting increases in fixed costs, we have to find the money someplace. It becomes even more of a reduction when we try to give the faculty and employees pay adjustments somewhere near the cost of living increases."

Powell concluded that considering double digit inflation, the University has lost 30 to 40 percent in effective purchase power. To combat this, additional resources are needed in these areas. Evidently these resources may not be available.

University Vice- Presidents

The University Vice-Presidents have more responsibility than many students are aware. They are comparable to tires on a vehicle. If you only have one tire the vehicle will not function; but as a set they work together to cause movement. If you disassemble the divisions or forces that work together to make the University a success, you would find the commanding leaders of each to be the Vice-Presidents.

Earl Baldwin is the University Vice-President of Business Affairs. He is responsible for all business services and transactions for University.

The Vice-President of Public Affairs is Donald Feltner. His position deals with the recruiting of students and alumni affairs under the Division of University School Relations. He is additionally responsible for all communications under the Division of Public Information, and job placement action under the Division of Career Development and Placement.

President of Student Affairs and Research, John Rowlett, is the overseer in handling student registration, class scheduling, and curriculum alterations.

His dedication to and support of the University was evident when he appeared at the higher education rally held in October. He encouraged the 2,000 students present at the rally to voice their support for higher education before policies were put into effect that could have a devastating effect on their education.

Board of Regents

The Eastern Kentucky University Board of Regents approved a request for state general fund appropriations increase for the 1982-1984 budget. Among the items needing attention are faculty and staff salary increases and improvement of the academic computing services. The U.S. Department of Education granted $100,000 to support the projects part.

Two new members took their seats this year on the board. Dr. Rodney Gross of Grayson, Kentucky and Tim Crawley, a 20-year old sophomore from Campbellsville, were the new additions.

Dr. Rodney Cross is the first black member appointed to Eastern's board. His appointment was made by Gov. John Y. Brown and is for a six-year term.

Tim Crawley was elected by the student body last spring for the student regent seat. The new student regent's term is for one academic year.

The officers chosen for the 1981-82 year were Charles Combs, chairman of the board; J.W. Phelps, a newly appointed vice-chairman; Dr. Doug Whittlock, a first-time secretary of the board; Mrs. Donna Masters, assistant secretary; and Earl Baldwin, reappointed board treasurer.

GRADUATE SCHOOL

With the addition of the Community Nutrition Program, the Graduate School currently offers the Eastern community 34 registered degree programs, as well as numerous program options. The School also offers seven specialist degrees that fall between a masters and a doctoral degree, and two joint doctoral programs with the University of Kentucky.

The Graduate School serves about two thousand students at the University's campus in Richmond, and through its extension system in southeastern Kentucky, it also reaches an additional six hundred.

Dean Charles H. Gibson said that despite loss of revenue due to educational cutbacks, the Graduate School will continue to operate its programs stressing efficiency and effectiveness. He said that emphasis will continue to be placed on the quality of the professors conducting graduate level courses, as well as the qualifications of the Graduate School applicants.

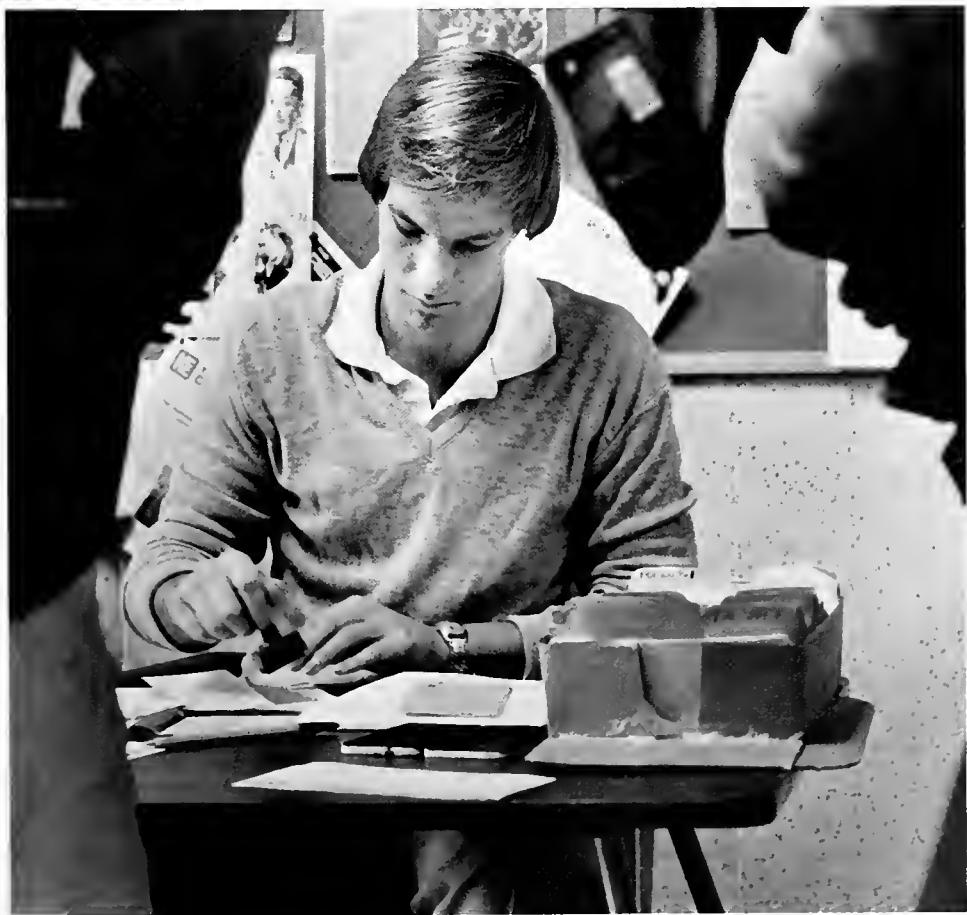

Dean of Graduate School, Dr. Charles Gibson

Assistant basketball coach Karen Fishbaugh is also a graduate student.

Karen Bullock Chosen as Hall of Fame Entry

Miss Karen J. Bullock, a Biology Pre-Medical major from the college of Natural and Mathematical Science, was awarded the 1982 Hall of Fame Award.

"I felt pleased someone had enough confidence in me to recommend me for the award," Bullock said.

Bullock will be attending the 1982 class, School of Medicine, University of Kentucky.

Bullock was president of the Caducus Club and the Collegiate Pentacle and Senior Advisor of Lambda Sigma.

The recipient of the Hall of Fame Award was chosen from a group of outstanding students — one student from each of the seven colleges at the University. A committee, formulated by president J.C. Powell, made the decision of the Hall of Fame entrant.

College of Allied Health and Nursing

In 1981, the College of Allied Health and Nursing began with Diana Weaver as acting-dean. Dr. David Gayle, returned as dean of the college in January following a sabbatical leave. According to Weaver, budget cuts affected the college in the area of equipment. Instead of buying new equipment to replace old equipment, the college opted for repairs to extend the use of equipment.

Outstanding student Angela Mahler said, "I felt I received the award because I was able to balance my extracurricular activities with my academic studies."

Sister Mary Agnes Wilson, outstanding teacher, was thrilled and surprised about the award. "I feel the key factor was having the great concern for the students," said Wilson.

College of Applied Arts and Technology

The College of Applied Arts and Technology is remarkably diversified. The college is composed of agriculture, home economics, industrial education and technology, mass communications and military science departments.

Dean Kenneth S. Hansson, stated that cutbacks have been apparent in the college. According to Hansson, the college's largest challenge is keeping its equipment up-to-date. The cost of the equipment is rising, and it is costing more to keep the equipment in good working condition. On a light note, Dean Hansson, offered some advice to the students, "Take care of the equipment. We may not be able to replace it."

Even with the cutbacks, the college is still growing adding two new programs: Community Nutrition and an Associate Degree in Quality Assurance. This is the first year these programs have been offered. The college also offers an excellent cooperative program. This is for students who want to receive working experience in their field of study.

Dean Cannon owes the honor of being chosen as outstanding teacher from the College of Applied Arts and Technology to the teachers who taught him. "Teachers teach how they are taught, and if I'm a good instructor, I am reflective of my teachers before," he said.

Karen House, the choice of outstanding student from the College of Applied Arts and Technology, said the honor was "totally unexpected." "It really surprised me because I transferred from Sue Bennett College," she said. House is a senior journalism major.

College of Arts and Humanities

The College of Arts and Humanities opens a door through which you learn to be creative and express yourself. The college feels its purpose is to prepare the students for their careers.

Although, Dean John M. Long points out, "Getting an education is not just to train yourself. Our hope is to provide a well-rounded, broad base of understanding and start seeing the relationship of things."

The College of Arts and Humanities offers courses in art, English, several foreign languages, interdisciplinary humanities, music, philosophy and religion, and speech and theatrical arts. Most of these departments have their own clubs and special activities.

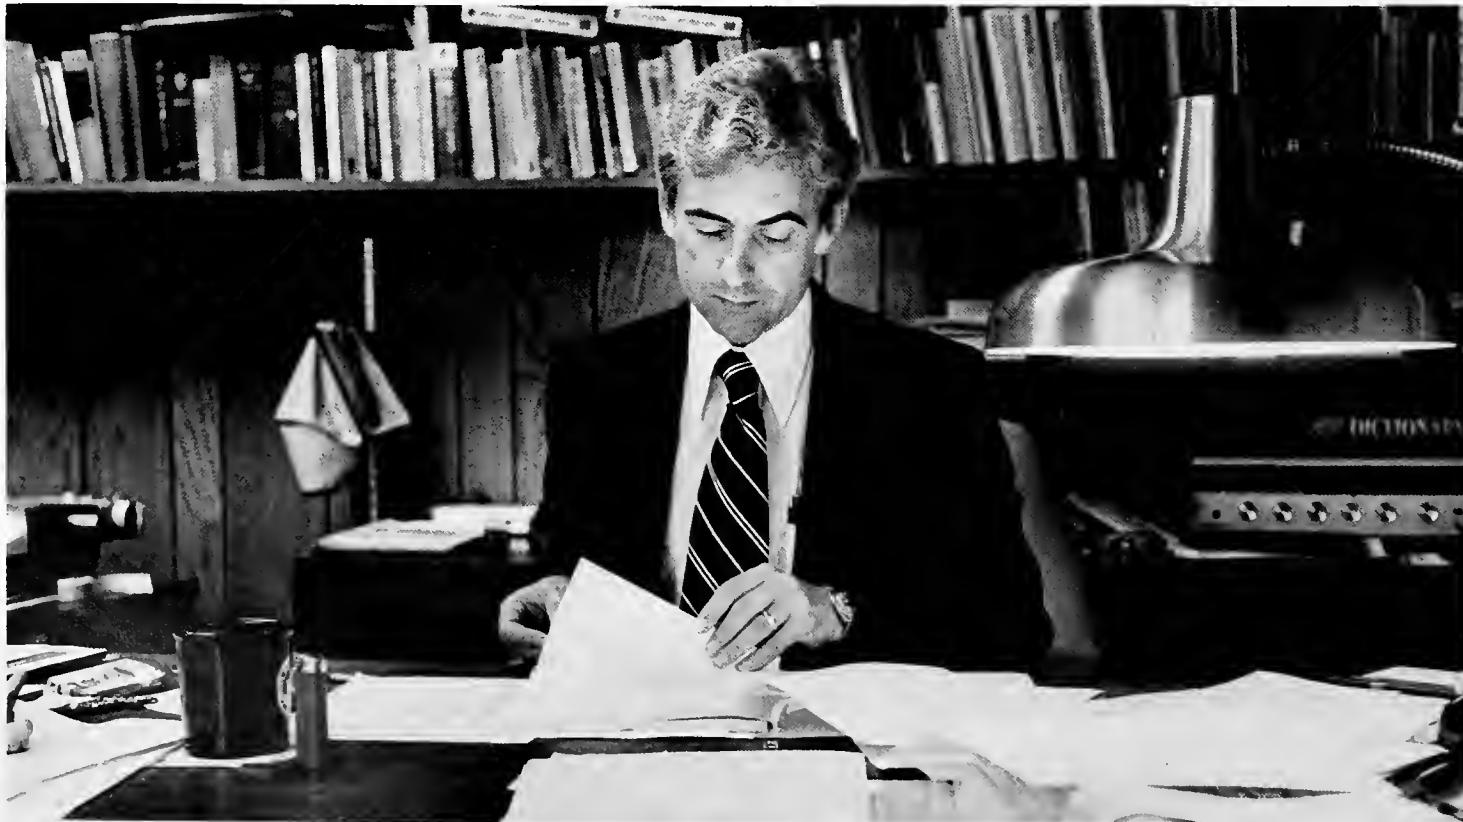

Some good examples of these are the performing arts and ensemble each year, the art department has art exhibits and demonstrations from the students and faculty, and the theatrical department provides us with four or more major plays a year. You do not have to be a major of Arts and Humanities to take part in many of these events. Several hundred students from all areas are involved each year.

One major accomplishment for the faculty of the College of Arts and Humanities is a new event they started last year. They held a college symposium at Maywoods, where eleven papers were presented and discussed concerning issues of teaching and student responses. Dean Long feels this was a very worthwhile event and is planning another for this April.

Dr. Charles Whittacker, outstanding teacher from the College of Arts and Humanities said, "It isn't what you do but how you do it that matters for something to be effective. Primarily what counts is my method of using techniques," when asked why he received the award.

Kristie Conn, outstanding student from the College of Arts and Humanities, expressed her feelings on winning the award as this, "I guess it just takes a lot of hard work and being in love with what you are doing."

College of Business

The rapid growth in the College of Business enrollment from 600 undergraduate majors in 1974 to four times that many in 1981 has led to a proposal to restrict student admissions into the College of Business, according to Howard Thompson, dean of the College of Business.

Thompson said that in this seven year period, while the number of students quadrupled, faculty size had only doubled from 32 to 67, so that the average number of student credit hours taught per faculty member also nearly doubled. As a result, according to Thompson, the choices were to hire more people or restrict enrollment. "We chose to propose enrollment restrictions," Thompson said, citing the high cost of recruiting and retaining faculty as one of the factors involved in the decision.

The restrictive admissions policy, still in the proposal stage, will differ at least in one respect from the restrictive admissions policy followed by the College of Allied Health and Nursing in that there will be no quotas.

When the question, "What is your philosophy on teaching" was posed before Dr. Manab Thackur, outstanding teacher from the College of Business, the reply was, "Knowledge is something that doesn't mean anything unless you can disseminate this knowledge in their own understandable words. That is the challenge I would provide to other teachers.

Julie Thompson, outstanding student from the College of Business, was asked how she felt upon winning the award and she replied, "I was surprised. I'm sure it was a tough decision. I've always had a motivation to study and being involved with the data processing management association helped me get to know other people in my program, therefore making it more fun."

College of Education

Focusing on the quality of the teachers produced by its programs, the College of Education continued its commitment to excellence this year. Beginning with the testing of the basic skills of its applicants, the college carried this theme through its programs, culminating with the competency examination of the graduating teachers.

Cuts in the education budget have affected all facets of the College of Education, but Dean Dixon Barr, the first and only dean of the college, said that despite the shortage of funds, the college is functioning at an unprecedented rate of efficiency. He points to the new masters program option in education and the increased interest about in-service days as evidence of the college's successful programs.

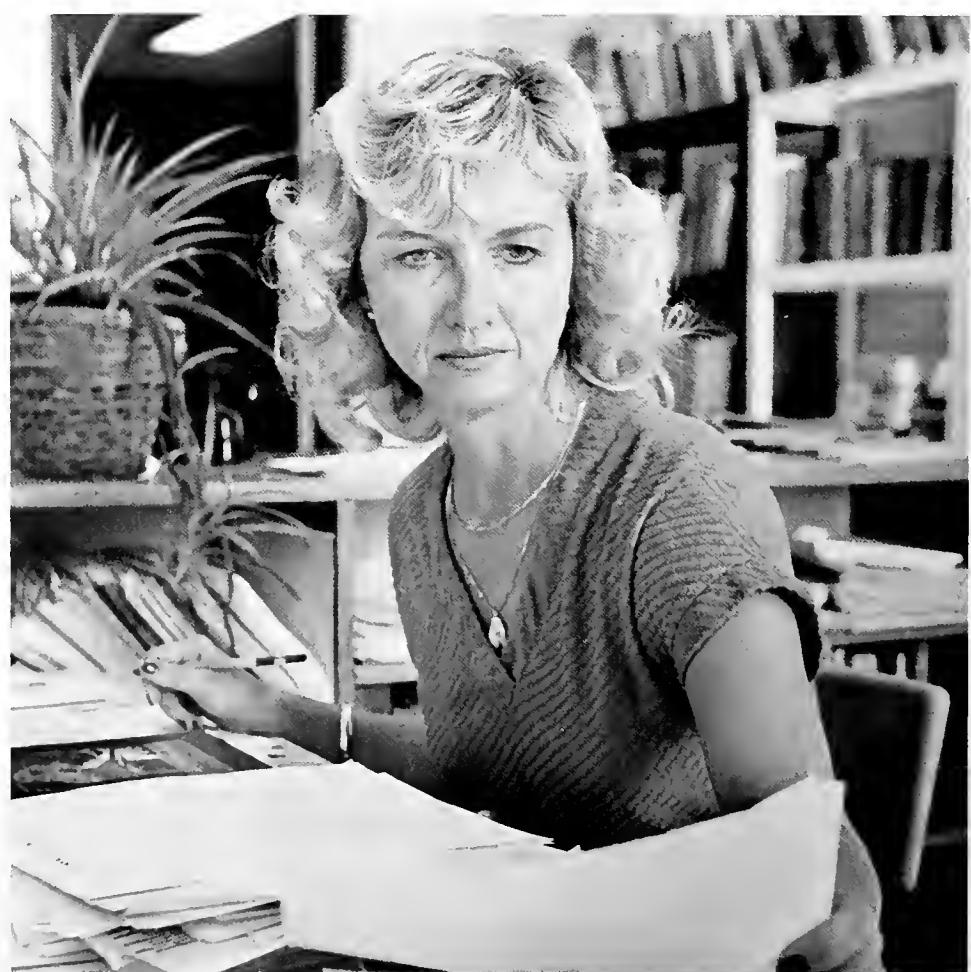

In-service days consist of workshops and discussions, and practical studies in the laboratory school.

Upon receiving the outstanding student award from the College of Education, Lisa Thompson said, "I'm really honored. I'm interested in what I'm doing. I have been encouraged by my teachers, friends and family."

Roberta Hendricks, outstanding teacher from the College of Education, said "I'm pleased that they give this award for people doing well in their field. What means most to me is that the students and alumni make the decision. There are a lot of teachers that deserve this award, and I am honored to receive it."

College of Health, Physical Education, Recreation, and Athletics

The Eastern Dance Theatre demonstrates the beauty of dance.

Dean of the College of H.P.E.R. & A., Russel M. Bogue

The College of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics has touched on the curriculum of every student here at the University. It gives the student the opportunity to combine the mental and physical aspects of education in a way that is enjoyable and important in physical care. Recreation plays a very important role in our generation. Thanks to technology, there is more and more leisure time and fitness has taken its well-deserved place in our lives. The College of Health Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics, has set its goals on teaching the importance of physical exercise, health education and the proper knowledge that will allow the most benefit.

Dean Bogue of the College says, "The most important thing for a student to do is acquire a well-rounded education. Physical education is a part of that well-rounded education. To perform the physical qualities you must use your mind power."

When asked how the budget cuts had effected the college, Dean Bogue replied, "As of right now, it hasn't effected us a great deal. When the time comes that it does, the only way to cope with it is to do away with some things we've had in the past."

Dean Bogue leaves as a challenge to the students of the University; "All of us have different God-given talents. No matter what your talent may be, develop it in a manner that will allow you to help other people. If you use your talent in this way, you know you're the best you can be."

The outstanding teacher from the College of Health, Physical Education, Recreation and Athletics was Sheryl J. Stephan. When she was ask how she felt upon receiving the award she replied, "I felt very proud that the students and alumni thought that highly of me. I was very honored."

COLLEGE OF LAW ENFORCEMENT

Dean Robert W. Posey views the college of Law Enforcement with pride. The college includes the department of police administration, department of corrections, department of fire prevention, the traffic safety institute and a new addition — the department of security and safety. The college and its programs are known throughout the country for excellence and Dean Posey contributes the success of his college to the staff that he has been able to secure.

The pride of the college also extends to the faculty. Dr. Terry C. Cox, from Salem, W.V.A., was chosen as the college's outstanding teacher. He is a graduate of the University of Akron, and came to the University from the Cleveland Police Department in 1978. When asked about the award that he received he replied, "I try to give my students the most. I do not believe in a straight lecture, class participation is what I strive for. I feel that if the students get involved in the discussion they will learn more from it."

The outstanding student for the college of Law Enforcement was Susan Lewis. When asked about the award she said "The reason that I was picked is I have been involved in organizations and the college and stayed involved, and good grades helped a little too."

College of Natural and Mathematical Sciences

If the mad scientist in you is coming out, your mind seeking knowledge and your hands hungry for creation, the College of Natural and Mathematical Sciences could be the place for you. It covers six departments including the biological science, chemistry, geology, natural sciences, physic/astronomy, and the mathematical science.

Dean Donald Batch says the only real problem the college is having at this time is with the budget cuts. The enrollment in the college has increased 10 percent and the budget has decreased 10 percent. The college is in need of scientific and computer equipment, classrooms, faculty, and experimental supplies.

Dean Batch feels his goal to the students is this: providing them with the best education and the facilities that the budget can support. "The students are here to get an education and I'll try to do my best job of providing the faculty and proper courses for them."

Dr. William Farrar is the outstanding teacher from the College of Natural and Mathematical Sciences. Describing his feelings on winning this award and what qualities should be represented, he said, "I was very surprised when I won the award. I think that you have to have a certain amount of dedication and desire to help others. Patience plays a very important role in dedication.

Dean from the college of Natural and Mathematical Sciences, Donald Batch.

Precision and accuracy are essential during chemistry experiments as this student demonstrates.

Experiments sometimes give lab students unexpected and surprisingly interesting results.

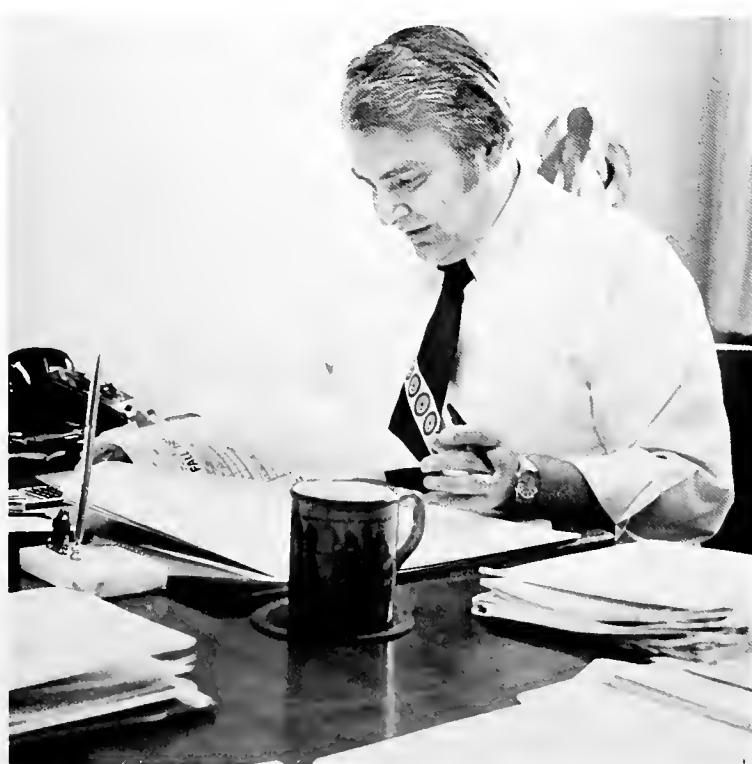

College of Social and Behavioral Sciences

The College of Social and Behavioral Sciences has been affected by the budget cuts. The college has met the new challenge by borrowing faculty members, securing volunteer workers, and using student panel discussions as a learning experience.

The budget cuts have brought about a decision to review the curriculum in order to make the classes more efficient.

Although the budget issue is closed, Dean Enzie's office is always open. Dean Enzie's duties leave him on a busy schedule, but he still finds time to train his golden retriever.

Susan Morris, selected the outstanding student of the college, said "I'd like to give credit to the atmosphere at Eastern and my instructors for their support and encouragement. Without this, I might have not set my goals as high, and ultimately might not have accomplished them."

Organizations Challenging Times

Student Association Battles Proposed Budget Cuts

The Student Association governs the University's student body. Under the leadership of President Carl Kremer and Vice-President Neil Dimond, the SA devoted their year to many worthwhile projects, including fighting the budget cuts proposed to the University by Governor Brown.

The Rally for Higher Education was held on October 20, in the fountain area. Students, faculty, and the media turned out to hear such dignitaries as President J.C. Powell and Senator Robert R. Martin.

Other projects this year included the first graduation ceremony for December graduates, sponsoring the Book Exchange Directory (BED), and sponsoring the University Pals program for Brockton kids. They also provided council for students who went before the disciplinary board.

Other proposed policy changes included longer open house hours, improved mail service, and extension of library hours.

1982

This year's relatively young staff worked hard to maintain the high standards in the 1982 edition of the Milestone that have been carried over from those of the past. Many long hours of hard work and dedication went into making this edition the quality book that it is.

Editor, Karen House and Managing Editor, Missy White gave much strength to the staff with their yearbook ability and experience.

The pictures and the words contained in this book represent the year that was 1981-82, and the life on campus as seen through the eyes of the staff.

PROG

Progress describes the effort of the University's newspaper staff as they covered such subject areas as state budget cuts for universities, the reasoning behind the cuts and the implications for the student.

The "People Poll" covered student's concerns, such as national and state budget cuts, drunk driving and marijuana penalties, public non-smoking areas, over-crowded dormitories and dorm maintenance. Editorial cartoons provided different views of El Salvador, Poland, "Reaganomics" and state budget cuts.

The 60-year old publication also began operating under the Department of Mass Communication for the first time in several years. The group has started doing their own typesetting and paste-ups. The weekly publication served as a laboratory experience for students in journalism.

An exciting football season was made even more exciting by the colorful halftime and pregame performances of the EKU Marching Maroons. Under the direction of David C. Priester, the Maroon Band performed at all six home games and travelled to Morehead for the EKU-Morehead State game. The band, approximately 130-members strong, was led on the field by Drum Majors Tracy Gilbert and Mischa Dunnington. Many hours of practice went into preparing for each performance. Besides performing at pregame and halftime, the band worked with the cheerleaders to encourage and promote spirit at the games. The band is assisted by Graduate Assistants Thomas Coleman and David Jones. Director of Bands is Dr. Robert Hartwell.

Music, Music, Music

The campus was indeed "alive with the sound of music" this year as the Department of Music continued some old traditions and began some new ones.

Handel's "Messiah," which began in Italy in the 17th century, celebrated its 50th Anniversary Performance in Brock Auditorium on December 13. The Concert Choir, University Singers and EKU Symphony Orchestra combined their talents to present the famous oratorio. The soloists were EKU faculty members.

The University Singers held various concerts throughout the year and also sponsored the Madrigal Feast at Christmas.

The instrumental musicians were not to be outdone either. Concerts were given throughout the year by various groups including the concert band, symphony orchestra, string orchestra, jazz band and numerous small ensembles.

Whatever your taste in music, something could be found to please you, thanks to the efforts of the Department of Music.

The Association of Childhood Education International consists of education majors whose purpose is to promote the interest of students and youth in the teaching profession. Members got the opportunity to meet with other education majors outside of the classroom. Since they received no funding from the University, the club sponsored many money-making projects in order to send members to the national conference.

The Accounting Club is an organization for accounting majors; its purpose, to acquaint members with accounting procedures and the business world outside of classes. This year, the club prepared free tax returns for low-income families as part of the Volunteer Income Tax Assistance Program. Club members also tutored accounting students in need of help and provided trips to show the practical aspects of accounting.

Homecoming brings out talent, as shown above with the BSU's winning float.

The Baptist Student Union is a Christian organization for students founded over 50 years ago. Since its founding, they have provided a ministry to the University in many ways. The ministry was carried to several areas through puppets, the small singing ensemble "Revelation," clowns, and their prison ministry. The BSU also provided fellowship this year through dorm devotions and ministry to the children of Brockton. This organization benefited its members by helping them to become better leaders in the Church, and gave them a chance to grow spiritually, emotionally and physically.

Construction crews are back on campus with the building of the new BSU Center.

This year the Black Student Union worked to promote pride and unity among its members and to provide a broadened insight and awareness of minorities. The members assisted each other with personal and academic problems. Speaker presentations given on minorities, musical entertainment, and the annual BSU picnic were a few of their activities.

Capt. William Boner

Eastern has one of the largest ROTC programs in the nation. The men who run it are experienced army men who are giving the cadets the benefit of their military careers.

Captain William Boner is one of these men. A graduate of Eastern, Captain Boner was surprised that his request for a ROTC assignment saw him stationed at his alma mater.

His request came after spending ten years in the Army. During that time Capt. Boner spent three years in Germany and served two years at Ft. Benning, Georgia, where he trained allied troops from over 60 different countries.

Currently, Capt. Boner is teaching two different courses to freshmen while he works on his master's degree. His plans after that are to spend five months in specialized training, and from there to a position with the United Nations.

Dr. Jane Rainey

It has been said that the two things that should not be discussed at parties are politics and religion.

While they make lousy party topics, they make an interesting combination for a class taught by Dr. Jane Rainey, associate professor of political science. The popular class concerns itself with the relationship between politics and religion, and the interaction of the two, not only in the United States, but also in other countries.

Dr. Rainey also teaches a class on Soviet politics and has traveled to the Soviet Union on several occasions, most recently in 1977. Useful in her travels was her ability to speak Russian.

Another interesting fact about Dr. Rainey is that while both she and her husband are from Atlanta, both attended the same high school, and both shared the same Russian tutor. They did not meet until they came to the University to teach.

Since then, they have occupied their spare time renovating a house they bought in an older section of Richmond.

Dr. David Greenlee

"The Bluegrass is alive with the sound of music . . ." It makes for a poor song but it accurately describes the area around Dr. David Greenlee.

As the Director of Choral Activities, Dr. Greenlee is in charge of the various vocal groups of the University. His roots in his profession stem from when he sang in his high school choir. He went to Ball State University to study under the man who conducted the all-county choir of which Greenlee was a member. This conductor inspired Greenlee to become a director of choral music.

However, Dr. Greenlee's job involved far more than just singing. The activities of the groups under his direction range from performing at the Madrigal Dinner to football banquets, and from singing at halftime of football games to entertaining people in Europe.

Despite all this, he still finds time to play. His hobbies range from photography to working with volunteer fire departments.

Dr. Doris Sutton

Haunted houses are not part of your normal summer vacations, but they form a focal point for this summer's break for Dr. Doris Sutton, an associate professor of English at the University.

Dr. Sutton has planned to spend her break researching Eastern Kentucky folklore in the seven counties surrounding Pine Mountain. Folklore consists of the orally preserved traditions and stories of the area. A native of London, Dr. Sutton also lived in Harlan County.

Generally speaking, ghosts are not thought to be evil, according to Sutton. "They're usually described as restless spirits that come back and remind people of something", she said.

"I don't disbelieve in ghosts", said Sutton. "Maybe there is a logical explanation, and maybe there are just ghosts."

Dr. Bruce Wolford

Education — whether he is working with students in the classroom, or with inmates in a prison, Dr. Bruce Wolford is interested in giving his students knowledge.

Dr. Wolford spent his years before coming to the University working with prisoners at the Chillicothe, Ohio Corrections Institute, where he was the counselor for the prison's educational programs.

Dr. Wolford has been able to relate his experiences with the inner workings of the correctional systems to the students in his corrections classes.

His interest in Criminal Justice also carries over into his extra-curricular activities. Dr. Wolford is one of three National Advisors of Alpha Phi Sigma, the criminal justice honorary Society. This position has given him the opportunity to come in contact with criminal justice students from throughout the nation.

Ruth Davis

Caring — more than any other word, it describes a nurse. And caring is a word that typifies Mrs. Ruth Davis, assistant professor of baccalaureate nursing. The evidence of Mrs. Davis's caring is visible in her involvement in community activities.

Mrs. David founded the Richmond Chapter of Parents Anonymous. Parents Anonymous is a self help group that is designed to help parents that abuse their children. Parents Anonymous strives to help the parents understand and change their behavior.

Another example of "caring" is Mrs. Davis's involvement in the local hospice program. She became involved in the hospice program because of personal experiences. The program was created for the terminally ill and allows the patient to await the inevitable at home rather than in an impersonal environment. Hospice is made up of a team of doctors, nurses, ministers and lay people that work together to help the family care for the patients.

Tom Jones

Football rivalries are commonplace — it's the intensity of these rivalries that are so relevant to individuals. And when it comes to intensity, the rivalries between Eastern, and both Western and Morehead, are perfect examples.

Coach Tom Jones has experienced this intense rivalry not only as a coach but as a player. An offensive center at Western, he was a member of two OVC championship squads. After graduating from Western in 1973, Jones went on to coach various high school squads. His 1977 team won him the honor of Class A Coach of the Year in Kentucky. He then went on to Morehead where he served as the offensive line coach for one year and the defensive line coach for two years.

In 1981 Jones became an assistant coach for his alma mater's greatest rival, Eastern. Tom Jones is now the offensive line Coach for the Colonels.

Thanks to the efforts of Dr. Robert Burkhart, chairperson of the English Department, several stray dogs and cats around campus now have new homes.

Burkhart's concern for the animals prompted him to write a letter to The Progress last year. Through the power of the press and the concern of several students, Burkhart and Judy Cunningham of the College of Education organized Animal Friends.

Animal Friends' purpose was to find homes and care for the strays on campus.

"I think the most direct result of the group has been that students which have brought animals here are being more responsible for their care," said Burkhart.

He said several faculty members, students, University security staff and the University dairy barn have provided homes for strays in the past year.

With the coming of age of the women's movement, there has been a greater emphasis on women and their role in history.

Associate professor of history Dr. Nancy Forderhase has conducted extensive studies on just that subject. She teaches a class on the topic, and to make that knowledge more accessible she also makes herself available as a speaker for various civic groups.

Her particular field of interest is the women of the Shaker Society. She became interested in this topic as a result of working with the Elderhostel program, and educational program for senior citizens that culminates in a visit to Pleasant Hill, Ky., also known as Shertown.

Her greatest love, however, is teaching. Her style and affection for her students have won her many lasting friendships.

A vibrant personality and an inquisitive mind are truly the best ways to characterize Dr. Forderhase.

Dr. Mary McGlasson

Despite the gray that streaks her hair, it is difficult to believe that Mary McGlasson, assistant professor of biology, is not a teenager in disguise. Her enthusiasm for life gives her a youthful appearance.

McGlasson has many interests to keep her young. She is the president of the Richmond Choral Society and also sings with the group.

Her love of life has led McGlasson to do what many people only dream about. At the age of 48, she set out to obtain one of her dreams, to learn to ride horses. She took lessons and spent the majority of that summer riding mountain trails in Colorado, Montana and Arizona.

McGlasson also dreams of riding the space shuttle. However, her love of teaching is keeping her feet on the ground.

"There'll be a few tears shed when I leave this place."

Edsel Mountz wasn't necessarily talking about the students when he made that statement, but he might well have been. Mountz is the kind of person every student dreams of meeting — an adviser who enjoys the work. According to him, advising is one way to get to know the students well and make lasting friendships.

Academic advising isn't the only type he does. He also has served as faculty sponsor for Beta Theta Pi fraternity, co-sponsor of Pi Omega Pi and was even adviser of the Wesley Foundation "back in the early days".

Mountz came to the University in 1956 and has watched it grow every year. As he put it, he's had a lot of fun here but he is looking forward to his impending retirement. While it will give him a chance to travel and work in his garden, Mountz knows he will miss the students.

He probably put it best when asked why he enjoys being around young people — "It keeps one young — it doesn't give you a chance to think old."

Dr. Branley Branson

Prolific is not the middle name of Dr. Branley Branson of the biology department but it might as well be.

By his own count, Dr. Branson has had somewhere between 500 and 600 articles printed in various publications. While most of his writings were in the biological field, Dr. Branson has also written on scientific matters for non-technical magazines.

As if this activity were not enough, Dr. Branson also takes great pleasure in being both part Indian and part Scot. He is extremely active with the Scottish Rite Bodies, where he is able to fully enjoy his membership in clan MacPherson.

Dr. Branson has displayed a great zest for life. Not only does he enjoy making people think critically, he does the same for himself with his memberships in several different conservation groups.

Dr. Emogene Hogg

"I love teaching, it is the most exciting thing in my life."

Perhaps this philosophy is one reason why Dr. Emogene Hogg, professor of Business Education and Office Administration has received so many awards for her teaching.

Dr. Hogg was chosen as one of the Outstanding Educators in 1972, she was also awarded the Outstanding Service Award to the class of 1972.

In 1981, Dr. Hogg was awarded what she considers to be her greatest honor. She was chosen as the Outstanding Teacher from the College of Business. According to Dr. Hogg, there is no greater honor than being chosen as the outstanding teacher by students, alumni and fellow faculty.

Dr. Ursel Boyd

Too often we fail to see the beauty that surrounds us. We grow so accustomed to it that we overlook the beauty in the day to day happenings in our lives. This beauty that we take for granted is noticed and appreciated more by strangers to our country than by us.

Dr. Ursel Boyd, a native of Berlin, Germany, never fails to note the beauty of the world around her.

Dr. Boyd came to the United States shortly after World War II. A graduate of the University of Berlin, she continued her education at the Washington Law School in St. Louis, Missouri. After working at various Universities Dr. Boyd and her husband settled in Lexington. The security and the family-like atmosphere of a university like Eastern was the home she had looked for.

Perhaps coincidentally is that her two favorite Americans are both Kentuckians: Abraham Lincoln and Cassius Clay.

One of her most honored possessions hangs on her library wall, the naturalization papers that declare her a United States citizen.

Her enthusiasm for life and the experiences of her lifetime combine to give Dr. Boyd a glow that reflects so much of the beauty she sees in America.

Dr. Bill Berge

What do Jane Fonda and Dr. Bill Berge have in common? Here's a hint — it's not their good looks.

Actually, the answer is oral history tapes that Dr. Berge has collected. Fonda used some of those tapes to learn the dialect of Kentucky women for a movie role.

Dr. Berge has been working on his oral history project since 1965. It consists of making voice tape recordings of people around the state, and currently contains around 1700 interviews revealing local history, politics, and life as remembered by average individuals.

Actually, Dr. Berge could be an interesting interview for his own project. He is the faculty adviser of Omega Psi Phi and the University Ensemble. According to him he has learned a lot working with both groups. His reason for advising two black groups? As it turns out he just felt that if no one else would do it, then it was up to him — that the kids deserved the chance to organize.

As director of the University's oral history project, it is obvious that Dr. Berge is one person who has a "voice" in Kentucky's history.

Dr. Fred Engle

Long before the University was a glimmer in the eyes of the legislature, men like Daniel Boone and Kit Carson were making Madison County their home.

Dr. Fred Engle, professor of economics, grew up in Madison County. Surrounded by the richness of history that surrounded him, Dr. Engle became interested in learning more about the history of his own home town.

Having established a reputation for being an expert on the history of Madison County, Dr. Engle now writes a weekly column for the Richmond Register on Madison County heritage.

In addition to his familiarity with the history of the county, Dr. Engle has an excellent background in knowledge of the University. He attended high school at Model Lab when it was located in the University Building, is the son of a teacher at Eastern Teachers College, and has had two sons and a daughter attend Model School and the University.

Dr. Robert Sharp

Horsesense is an important ingredient for any college person, student or teacher. Dr. Robert Sharp of the Economics department, however, takes the word seriously.

Horse economics, a course that Dr. Sharp teaches, is the result.

The course, basically an introduction to the less glamorous side of the horse industry, had its roots in his own interest in the animal. Dr. Sharp has played polo, owns a pair of thoroughbred mares, and has attended the sales at Keeneland.

When he noticed other people having the same interest, the course came into being. It is not a conventional course in that it is offered at night and has a large number of non-University people enrolled.

Directly responsible for some former students getting their jobs in the horse industry, Dr. Sharp's course is a perfect example of blending hobby and work, and getting away with it.

Dr. Steve Falkenberg

Dr. Virginia Falkenberg

Togetherness to some is just a word. To Steve and Virginia Falkenberg, however, it is a way of life.

The two associate professors of Psychology met in graduate school in Texas in 1970 and married in 1971. They then came to the University, with her getting a position first.

Continuing a tradition from graduate school, they found themselves sharing an office in the Cammack Building. They both fill their free time working with their church, where they both sing in the church choir.

However, the Falkenbergs do not carry things to extremes. Much like the "Odd Couple" of television fame they are divided by different interests. While she enjoys cooking and sewing, he writes and plays music, and builds furniture in his spare time.

They also share another problem with the Odd Couple — one is neat and the other is a bit sloppy. In fact, this seems to be the basis for one of the few differences they do have. If you ask her, he is the sloppy one and if you ask him, it's her.

Dr. Anne Brooks

"... you have to teach in a meaningful way . . . you have to inspire students with the courage needed to question the thoughts and ideas that affect their lives . . ."

In a university the size of Eastern it is often difficult to find a professor that is truly concerned about the students she teaches. For Dr. Anne Brooks, Chairperson of the Department of Humanities, teaching means more than simply relaying information. Teaching means awakening within her students a desire to learn; teaching means opening up their minds to new ideas and new experiences.

Perhaps the most interesting aspect of her career is the years she spent in Japan. From 1961-1965 Dr. Brooks taught at Kwassui Junior College in Nagasaki. While there she taught four classes in English and one Bible study class.

Taking full advantage of her contact with another culture, Dr. Brooks studied many aspects of Japanese culture, particularly the language and the dance.

Russia is a name familiar to everyone, but who really knows anything about the place?

Vitaly Wowk is one person that does. In fact, he knows it very well. Born in the Ukraine, he left at the age of 5 and has never been back. He has, however, travelled extensively in Europe.

Teaching in the foreign language department Dr. Wowk has had a chance to use his familiarity with Russia and Europe in his courses. He finds teaching fascinating, especially when his students are interested and receptive.

Contradicting the myth of the cold Russian, Dr. Wowk enjoys life. He likes the University, likes all of the classes he teaches and likes having people around him.

Probably one of the most gratifying aspects of his job was the increased interest in Russia. This semester there were over 100 students taking Russian.

With a following like that, it was no surprise that for Dr. Wowk, "There is nothing I would like to do more than teaching."

Dr. Vitaly Wowk

Dr. Duane Harding

"For years I was always mad at the weatherrnan and now I am one."

Duane Harding can no longer complain about the weatherman or at least he can't complain about the weekend weatherman. Dr. Harding nows spends his weekend doing the weather for WLEX-TV news in Lexington.

As a teacher it would seem that there would be many similarities between talking to a class and talking to a camera. According to Dr. Harding this isn't so. "You can't make eye contact with the camera as you can with students."

With a Ph.D. in meteorology he is qualified to be a weatherman, but Dr. Harding does enjoy the time he spends in the class room. He combines these interests by teaching a class on meteorology.

The job as a weatherman is still new to the associate professor. Unlike the rest of Kentucky, he hasn't yet gotten "cold feet" this winter. While preferring to keep his teaching career foremost, the on-camera experience is something he definitely relishes.

Dr. Robert Miller

Wine making as a hobby has been experiencing a revival in recent years. While Kentucky has long had a certain notoriety for a different type of home brew, Dr. Robert Miller wants to change that image.

Chairperson of the Department of Religion and Philosophy, Dr. Miller spends his spare time producing his own "fruit of the vine". With a vineyard near Paris, Ky., and a wine press in his storage room, he seems to be a logical choice for President of the Kentucky Vineyard Society.

Dr. Miller helped form this society in 1981. Its goals include popularizing the home production of wine and the enjoyment of the results of one's efforts.

He doesn't stop here. In addition to his philosophy workload, Dr. Miller has found time to teach courses in the arts of wine tasting and wine making for the special programs division of the University.

With his continued efforts, maybe Kentucky will eventually become famous for more than "White Lighting" when referring to home brew.

Dr. Dan Varney

Genetic Engineering is a phrase that scares a lot of people. Images of Dr. Frankenstein loom in the mind's eye. With his double-knit three piece suit, Dr. Dan Varney definitely does not fit the mold.

To Dr. Varney, one of his great pleasures is working with students and helping to remove some of the mystery of genetics. While his specialty is working with fescue grass for cattle, he enjoys designing research programs for students to acquaint them with the potentials of genetic manipulation.

But Dr. Varney is not restricted to just genetics. His interest in students has also extended to his free time. Off and on during his tenure at Eastern, he helped organize and advise the SAE fraternity. The fraternity was first organized with some biology majors and the job became somewhat of a natural outgrowth of his career.

With this work in genetics and his hobby of advising, Dr. Varney definitely enjoys the challenge of a college environment.

Ann Algier

"A teacher affects all eternity; she can never tell where her influence stops." H. B. Adams

All professors exert a certain amount of influence over the students they teach. Some professors are forgotten as soon as their class is over; others continue to influence the lives of their students long after their students have left the classrooms of the university.

Ann Algier is such a professor. She initiated the Learning Skills Program at Eastern. The Department of Learning Skills, like Mrs. Algier, is dedicated to helping students improve their reading and study skills. By helping her students improve their reading skills, Mrs. Algier is giving her students a gift they will never lose, the ability to read. This ability opens up the world to interested students.

Currently, Mrs. Algier is adding to her responsibilities by serving as the editor of the current issue of a Sourcebook on Learning Assistance Centers from the University of California at Berkeley.

Dr. Ralph Ewers

A spelunker is a person whose hobby is exploring caves. A geologist is a scientist whose field of study is rocks. If you put the two together you get a person who is interested in rocks in caves. You also get Dr. Ralph Ewers, professor of geology.

This fascination with caves has led Dr. Ewers to places throughout the world. Among the places he has visited are England and Wales, Ireland, Switzerland and Poland. He has also visited caves in Canada and the United States, with a record of travels and explorations in the Rocky Mountains in the Northwest United States.

According to Dr. Ewers, "All rocks have a story to tell us about the earth." According to his students, all Dr. Ewers have a story to tell us about rocks. In his enthusiasm to let people know about rocks and what rocks can tell us about the history of the planet, Dr. Ewers has been known to make a desk-top his forum. On at least one occasion he has attracted the attention of students by walking back and forth on top of his desk.

"The sun setting over the pine trees, the smell of fresh fish cooking, the sound of water lapping against canoes . . ."

The beginning of a poem? Actually, it's just a description of some of the favorite things of Dr. Douglas Hindman, professor of psychology. Dr. Hindman is a member of the Sierra Club, the nation's oldest and largest environmental group. Dr. Hindman is currently vice-chairman of the Cumberland Chapter of the Sierra Club. The Sierra Club is for those people who love nature and have an interest in preserving and protecting nature.

An environmental activist, Dr. Hindman worked to stop the building of a dam at Red River Gorge, one of Kentucky's most beautiful natural areas. Dr. Hindman has taken the Explorers Club, as well as his wife and daughter, over the trails that run through the Gorge.

And yet his love of nature doesn't stop here. Not only does he work to preserve the beauty of nature for others, he works to increase it for himself by raising orchids.

Dr. Jerry Joyner

Grown men shouldn't play with toys — but that doesn't mean they can't make them.

Dr. Jerry Joyner of the Industrial Education and Technology Department has become a bit of a celebrity with his expertly crafted toy cars and trucks that he constructs out of wood in his spare time. A catalog is currently being prepared to show examples of his more than 30 different designs of toys.

Possessing a good sense of humor, Dr. Joyner enjoys good-natured ribbing from his friends. However, he has never forgotten his primary goal to make his students achieve more than they think they can. He takes almost as much pride in a student's accomplishments as does the student. His office is decorated with photographs and sketches of students' work.

A past recipient of the Outstanding Teacher award, Dr. Joyner candidly summed up his work in one thought — that if given a choice of this job or any other, he wouldn't do anything else.

While most people complain about the phone company, Dr. Robert Grise of the College of Education thanks it. Without it, he would have a very hard time following his hobby — collecting old telephones.

He became interested in collecting telephones as an extension of his interest in telephone history. His collection ranges from an old switchboard originally used in Rockcastle County to different models of wall and desk units. Some of his phones have appeared in plays, while others have become parts of museum displays. Several of his old battery phones have reentered service in a western Kentucky at his church's family camping site.

Dr. Grise, his friends, and his relatives all add to his collection by frequenting antique shops and flea markets. His hobby has led him to give speeches and demonstrations to civic clubs and schools.

The one-room Granny Richardson Springs School is another hobby for Dr. Grise. He has led numerous tours through the building located on Kit Carson Drive, and is always on the lookout for items of interest which could be displayed there.

Nineteen hundred and eighty-two will be a special year for the people that read this book. It was a year spent at college. It was a year spent with good friends. It was a year of disappointment. It was a year of care-free good times.

From August until May thousands of ordinary people took on the title of College Student. Together, the College Students faced such challenges as moving in, term papers and final exams.

Together, the College Students survived the nine months through new-found relationships and friends.

Be it book, knowledge or life in general, by the end of the year, each student was a little more wiser.

Thomas Jefferson once said, "It is better to look forward than back, because I like the dreams of the future better than the past."

Sometime in the future, however, look back on the year 1982 and remember life as a college student.

Editor's Note

It's over. The last index page is finished and 1982 Milestone is complete.

Now that my term as editor is coming to a close, I have to say thanks to a long list of people.

First, I want to thank President J.C. Powell and Vice-president Donald R. Feltner for continuing to allow the Milestone to maintain its excellent tradition and quality. In spite of massive budget cuts, the Milestone has continued publication and was once again distributed free of charge to the student body.

To the students of the University, I want to say I hope you enjoy the finished product as much as I have enjoyed being editor. This is your book, not mine. I was fortunate to be allowed to put the book together for you, but this book represents the student body, not the editor and staff of the Milestone.

This book would not have been possible without the long hours and hard work put into it by an excellent staff. Missy White, Managing Editor, took over the Student Life Section and used her talents to put together an eye-catching representation of life on campus.

To Michelle O'Bryan and Melissa Hicks, I thank you for your diligence. Michelle met the difficult task of juggling the Organizations Section like a veteran staffer. Melissa used her knack for coordinating to encourage her staff workers and had the Academics Section finished before any other section.

To Sheri Mivelaz and Terri Lambert I owe thank you's for many long hours of work. Sheri brought an artistic touch to the Greek Life Section, and Terri brought an end to the monotony of the Classes Section by incorporating features with the hundreds of pictures and names.

The staff members of the '82 Milestone were just as dedicated as the editors. Janene Boehm won the title of Queen of the All-Nighters. She and Mike Hall brought a touch of innovation to the Organizations pages.

Annette Slater, Deanna Moore and Scott Blakely had the distinction of being the first staff members finished with their section. They all found interesting copy ideas and imaginative page designs for the Academics section.

Thanks also to Lee Ann Webb, Helena Dietrich, Jennifer Ferebee and Tim Robbins for their work on the Sports Section.

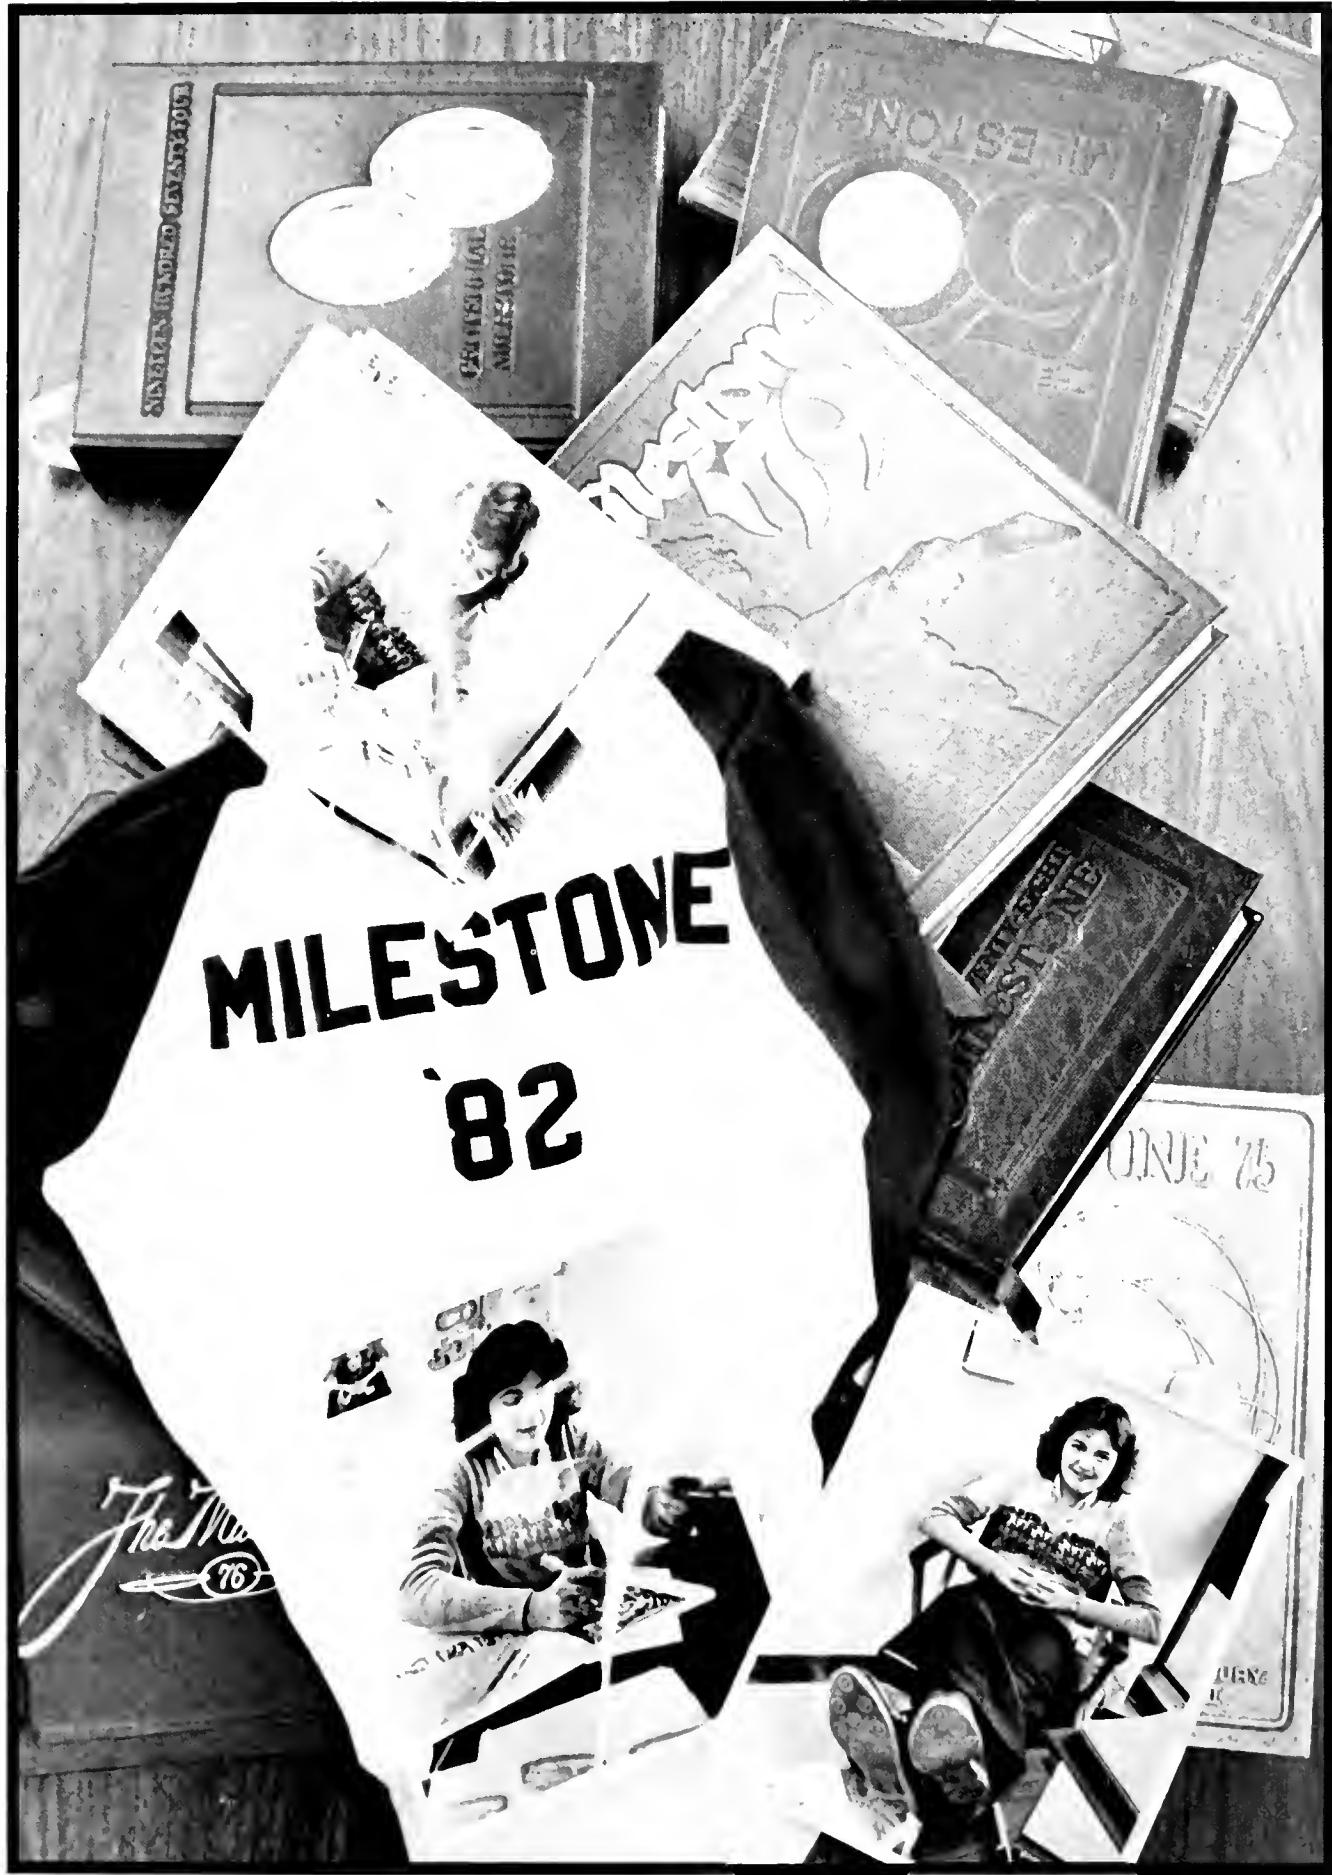

My greatest debt of gratitude goes to Larry Bailey and the photography staff of the Public Information Office. The work of Paul Lambert, Will Mansfield, Neil Thompson, P.J. Novak, and Greg Hunt have maintained the excellent tradition of the Milestone in photography. They put up with our mistakes, complaints and harrassment and still came through with our prints when we needed them.

As adviser, Larry Bailey put up with our shortcomings and guided us through the rough spots.

Thanks also go to the Delmar Publishing Company for their patience and consideration. Thank you, Bill Stoess, Ralph Van Dyke, Jim Hunter and Becky Alexander and all the people that worked on the book.

It's been fun.

SPECIFICATIONS

The 1982 MILESTONE was prepared by the students of Eastern Kentucky University and printed by offset lithography by Delmar Printing Company, Charlotte, North Carolina.

The paper stock is 80 pound Wesvaco Sterling Gloss Enamel.

The cover is a special design Skiver, with embossed design, silver foil top stamping and a black overtone rub.

Body copy for the opening and closing section is 14 point Optima Bold. Body copy is 12 point Optima, with 2 points of leading. All cutlines are 8 point Optima, with one point leading, and headlines are 24, 30 and 36 point Optima Bold.

Cameras used to photograph activity pictures for both four-color and black and white included Nikon (35mm) and Hasselblad (2 $\frac{1}{4}$ x2 $\frac{1}{4}$). Focal length lenses used range from wide angle, 35mm, to telephoto, 500mm. Senior and underclass portraits were photographed by Yearbook Associates, Millers Falls, Mass.

Press run was 7,500 copies.
